MADRID FOOD STOCKS NOW RUNNING LOW

Rationing of Supplies Being Considered in Spanish Capital

REBELS BLOCKADE NORTHERN CITIES

MADRID, Sept. 16 (CP. Havas).—Prospect of an acute food shortage in Madrid tonight became the chief preoccupation of the Government, as lengthening queues outside grocery and butcher shops threatened to become disorderly.

While the population of the city has been swelled by an influx of civilians and militiamen, the task of bringing in food has grown more difficult in the face of the insurgent advance. Newspapers tonight joined in demanding a rationing system be instituted.

In recent days increasingly long lines of shoppers, mostly women, have formed early each morning in front of Madrid food stores, particularly those selling eggs. During the course of the day some of them got out of hand and quarrelled with the militiamen detailed to maintain order.

The newspapers agreed with Government officials there was actually sufficient food obtainable, provided a proper distributing agency could be set afoot.

BLOCKADE ESTABLISHED

SAINT JEAN DE LUZ, France, Sept. 16 (AP).—General Emilio Mola, Fascist conqueror of Irun and San Sebastian, tonight moved his last troops to the Zaragoza and Madrid fronts, depending on land and sea blockades to starve out the remaining Government resistance in the Northern sector.

Carlismen (Monarchist) and Fascist militiamen patrolled streets of San Sebastian while in the harbor of

ARMY BLOCKS ANY INQUIRY

Fear Expressed Pakhoi Incident May Have Serious Consequences

NANKING, China, Sept. 16 (AP).—A recalcitrant army tonight blocked China's efforts to comply with Japanese demands that armed forces be evacuated from the southern city of Pakhoi.

Fear was expressed in Chinese circles that the peace of Asia might be threatened if strengthened forces of Japanese marines sought to force an investigation there into the killing of a Japanese drugist in the face of military resistance.

ORDERS EVACUATION

Shigeru Kawaguchi, Japanese Ambassador to China, in a conference with Foreign Minister Chang Chun, told him the soldiers, remnants of the historic 10th Route Army which defended Shanghai against the Japanese in 1932, must "leave as soon as possible."

The fifth anniversary Friday of Japanese occupation of Mukden which led to the establishment of the Japanese puppet state of Manchukuo, in Manchuria, was feared as another weight on the strained relations between China and Japan.

It was understood Kawaguchi advised Chang Chun of Japan's anxiety lest possible anti-Japanese demonstrations in China heighten the tension.

TAKE PRECAUTIONS

The National Government, acting quickly to guard against disorders, decreed extraordinary precautions to four days beginning tomorrow and barred all parades and similar demonstrations.

Reports to Hongkong, said martial law was proclaimed at Pakhoi after defiant soldiers of General Soong Chao-Yuan refused to withdraw from the city to admit investigators either of Tokyo or Nanking. Soong was declared to have stated his determination to resist the Japanese in the same manner his forces opposed Japanese attacks on Shanghai for three months in 1932.

Near Calamity as Big Plane Takes Off

A near calamity that made spectators gasp with momentary horror is recorded here. Just as Dick Merrill and Harry Richman, American trans-Atlantic flyers, lifted their airplane from the Welsh field in which they landed, to complete their flight to London, a movie sound truck rolled onto the field. The wing of the plane missed the truck and its camera man by less than a foot.

FLYERS LOST FOR MONTH IN NORTHERN WILDERNESS FOUND

Nugget of Record Size Brought Out Of Northern B.C.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 16 (CP).—What is believed to be the largest gold nugget ever found in Canada, as large as a goose's egg, weighing forty-three ounces, three pennyweight, and valued at more than $1,200, was brought to Vancouver today by Carl Lykegard from Spruce Creek, near Atlin, B.C. Lykegard, a Dane, who has been placer mining on Spruce Creek for the past six years, found the nugget at a depth of 500 feet during drifting operations, 1,200 feet from the creek.

Three Killed In Ontario Train Crash

NOVAR, Ont., Sept. 16 (AP).—Railway officials moved tonight to investigate a train crash near here on the Canadian National line which snuffed out the lives of three railway employees as they lay in their berths, and injured six other persons, none seriously.

H. O. Desautels, forty-six-year-old Toronto conductor on the work train, N. St. Clair, fifty, of Barrie, and W. C. Miller, of Allandale, Ont., brakeman on the same train, were all caught in their berths aboard the work train as a passenger crashed through the switch and onto the siding where the work train was standing.

Flames Sweep Through Paint-Mixing Plant—Loss Estimated At $110,000

SEATTLE, Sept. 16 (AP).—Two men lost their lives today in a fire which swept a paint company's storage and mixing plant with a loss of $110,000.

Arthur A. Jennings, thirty-one, clerk, perished on a staircase between the first and second floors of the two-story frame and brick building, and Roy Benson, twenty-five, purchasing agent, was fatally injured by falling from a window on the second floor, where he was trapped.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 16 (AP).—A. H. Peterson, Leslie Gilmore and A. W. McLellan, members of the British Columbia Coast Vegetable Marketing Board, today were summoned to appear in Supreme Court, Friday, on charges of committing contempt in failing to obey an injunction granted by Mr. Justice Denis Murphy on July 3. Harry Paterson, S. J. Creech and W. Gosse, inspectors of the board, are also included in the charge.

The injunction, granted potato and onion exporters, ordered the board to refrain from preventing or interfering with export of potatoes and onions.

APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED

J. C. McRuer Named to Royal Commission on Penitentiaries

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (AP).—Appointment of Brenton L. Daly, Winnipeg, to the Canadian National Railways board of directors, and J. C. McRuer, K.C., Toronto, to the vacancy on the Royal Commission on Penitentiaries, was announced tonight by Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe, Acting Prime Minister.

Mr. Daly, a conductor running out of Winnipeg and prominent in railway brotherhood circles, was the nominee of the committee of union chairmen who in Montreal following the invitation of the Government to the Canadian National employees to select their own representative on the board of directors.

Montmartre Quarter Is Given Scare

PARIS, Sept. 16 (CP-Havas).—A lot of people in Paris who scoffed at the predictions of pyromaniacs had a scare late last night when all lights in the gay Montmartre quarter suddenly went out at about the time Paris was supposed to be destroyed, according to ancient prediction.

High priests of the Pharaohs, figuring according to measurements of the pyramids, said long ago the night of September 15-16, 1936, would bring widespread destruction—or something.

Holiday Attractions Draw Huge Crowd to Willows Exhibition

Thousands at Race Track to See Livestock Parade—Midway Popular—Loggers' Sports, Dahlia Show and Horse Show Today's Features

LOUD speakers blared forth jazz, excited players shrieked with pleasure or dismay at the games of chance and hoarse-voiced barkers extolled their side shows when Victoria literally "went to the fair" yesterday, as Citizens' Day was held at the Provincial Exhibition. Throughout the entire day thousands milled about the exhibits and the midway, and one of the biggest crowds on record jammed the grandstand and track rail to see the races and incidentally watch the parade of prize-winning livestock.

LIVESTOCK PARADE

The parade of livestock was the outstanding feature of the day as handlers guided four stately six-horse teams, heavy draft horses and champion cattle through the infield at the race track. Led by a detachment of mounted Provincial Police, some 550 head of stock passed in review before the applauding crowd.

SPORTS TODAY

This afternoon at 2 o'clock another big attraction has been billed at the fair, when leading lumbermen will compete in a contest.

Capt. Jean Charcot, Internationally-Known Scientist, Among Victims of Sea's Fury—Only One Man Survives Foundering—Thirty Bodies Recovered From Storm-Beaten Beach

Danish Warship Fails to Find Any Other Survivors

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Sept. 16 (AP).—Captain Jean Charcot, noted French explorer, was drowned today together with all but one of the crew of sixty aboard the exploration ship Pourquoi Pas, which foundered in a gale off Iceland.

Some reports reaching London said only forty persons were aboard the vessel.

The lone survivor reported was Petty Officer Eugene Geonidec, who swam ashore through heavy surf and stumbled, exhausted, into the home of a fisherman.

Geonidec gasped out that the vessel grounded on rocks and was pounded to pieces by heavy seas so quickly those on board had practically no chance to escape. He said he was certain none of the sixty members of the crew save himself had survived.

The bodies of thirty men, including that of Dr. Charcot, tonight were washed up on the bleak Icelandic coast.

The Danish gunboat Aguir, which first reported the disaster, searched the seas about the sunken vessel's protruding spars, but found no other survivors.

FACTIONS IN PARIS CLASH

Fighting Between Rightists and Leftists Adds to Government's Troubles

PARIS, Sept. 16 (AP).—Street fighting tonight added to the strike troubles of the Government of Socialist Premier Leon Blum.

Three policemen and many demonstrators were injured in the clash on the Place Clichy in Paris between hundreds of Communist and followers of Francois de la Rocque, head of the Social party which formerly was the Croix de Feu, veterans' organization.

The Government, meanwhile, was balked in its efforts to solve the strike of 35,000 textile workers at Lille. Representatives of employers and employees conferred with Blum and his aides in Paris for nearly seven hours without reaching an agreement on salaries which strikers want increased 10 per cent.

TIMBERLAND TAKEN OVER

Acquiring Port Alberni Mill, Buyers Purchase Big Logging Tract

Involving timber holdings and a mill property on Vancouver Island, which are reported to be worth a figure in the neighborhood of $5,000,000, one or more deals have recently been consummated whereby the Alberni Pacific Lumber Company (1936) Limited, takes over the logging of the Alberni Pacific Mills and a block of timberland formerly registered in the name of John D. Rockefeller Jr.

The interests whose names are most closely associated with the mill at Port Alberni and the timber which extend from the vicinity of Old Alberni along the Ashcroft towards Comox Lake, are the H. R. McMillan Logging Company, Vancouver, H. H. Wallace, secretary of the Canadian Wild Pine Company, and W. J. Van Dusen, of the same concern.

The Alberni Pacific Lumber Company (1936) Limited, was formed a short time ago to take over the plant, including mill, logging equipment and rolling stock of the Alberni Pacific Mills, which has been operating at Port Alberni for some years and has been incorporated with a capitalization of $1,500,000.

It is understood that the new company will lose no time in commencing operations. The lumber area acquired consists of 14,000 acres which include 900,000,000 board feet, mostly old growth fir, with some cedar and hemlock. According to the records, an initial payment of $220,000 has been made, the balance of the purchase price—$2,275,000—being secured by mortgage.

The acquisition of the Alberni Pacific plant and the purchase of the Rockefeller 14,000 acres of timberlands by McMillan and associates is an assurance that the present property of the Alberni will be maintained over a period of years and will mean that loggers and mill help generally will be able to obtain employment in greater numbers than ever before in the history of the district.

RUSHING TO HALIFAX WITH ILL ENGINEER

HALIFAX, Sept. 16 (AP).—The tanker Cordelia, out of Port Arthur, Tex., churned toward Halifax tonight at full speed with one of her crew seriously ill from an attack of acute appendicitis.

The man was known to be an engineer but his name was not divulged in a message from the tanker to her agents here.

Victoria Farmers Win Major Awards In Stock Contests

Splendid Displays of Ayrshires, Holsteins, Jerseys And Guernseys on View at Willows—H. E. Burbidge and James Turner Win

VICTORIA and district farmers won many major awards in the livestock section of the Provincial Exhibition, it was announced at the fair grounds yesterday after judges had made reports. Thousands of dollars of championship stock are on display in the cattle barns and hundreds of persons yesterday viewed the animals.

The huge cattle barn was not large enough to accommodate the near record entry of 350 head, and one entire stable had to be used to house the boys' and girls' heifers and calves, which number over thirty.

LARGE ENTRY LIST

Holsteins and Jerseys are the most popular breeds among the cattle, with the former leading with 102 head entered. There are nearly as many Jerseys, fifty-three Ayrshires, forty-nine Shorthorns and twenty-six Aberdeen Angus. There was one entry in the Guernsey class. "This is one of the best shows I have ever attended," declared one of the judges after he had completed his work.

Grauer & Sons, Ltd., Vancouver, had a remarkable showing in the judging of the Jersey class. Their Holsteins made a creditable mark. Among the awards taken by the Grauer entry were the first junior calf, second on the senior calf, first prize for aged bull, and grand champion of Jersey in the class. In 1934 and again this year in Vancouver, Junior and reserve grand champion was won by this herd, with Lindell Lady Alden, a half-sister of the present sire of the Oregon State College herd. This herd was awarded the Canadian Bank of Commerce plate, and it marked the fourth successive time this herd has taken this prize.

CASH AWARDS

Although James Turner, perennial Victoria winner in the Shorthorn section, was defeated by the Holsteins made a creditable mark. Among the awards taken by the Grauer entry were the first junior calf, second on the senior calf, first prize for aged bull, and grand champion of Jersey in the class. In 1934 and again this year in Vancouver, Junior and reserve grand champion was won by this herd, with Lindell Lady Alden, a half-sister of the present sire of the Oregon State College herd. This herd was awarded the Canadian Bank of Commerce plate, and it marked the fourth successive time this herd has taken this prize.

and won all classes. There was no competition for this big herd of twenty-three head.

JERSEY EXHIBIT

H. E. Burbidge, widely-known breeder and exhibitor from Royal Oak, headed the entry list in the Jersey section and won the grand championship for cows with Babba-combe Standard Volage. The second best Jersey bull in his string was Golden Standard II. Another fine display of Jerseys is that of Walter Norbury, McAuley, Man., with seven head. One of the animals in this section is April Wonder, a prize-winning cow of years ago, one of the surviving cows of the former J. S. H. Matson herd.

Hugh Savage, Ladner, is exhibiting his junior championship bull in the three-year-old class. Ian Douglas, Stanichon, and A. W. Ayland, Sidney, are two local exhibitors who have a good showing in the Jersey section.

HOLSTEIN DISPLAY

The Colony Farm, Esquimalt, has the largest exhibit of Holsteins and closely following is the entry of the C.P.R. Supply Farm at Strathmore, Alta. Some of these animals are the junior champion bull, Strathmore Dewinton Sir Hilo, a reserve junior champion heifer, Strathmore Buttercup Canary, and a prize bull, Strathmore McKinley Emperor. In the Colony Farm exhibit are Colony Flood Calantha Perfection, Colony Ianthe Jewel Calantha and Colony Flood Perfection V, all prize-winning animals.

J. J. Richards, Red Deer, Alta., has some prize-winning Ayrshires on display in the barns. He won the grand champion bull award with Hobland Traveler Imported, and the reserve grand champion cow and reserve junior champion bull.

FARM SCHOOL

Another splendid exhibit in the Ayrshire section is that of the Prince of Wales Fairbridge Farm School, E. A. Wells, Sardis, has another good exhibit of Ayrshires. The Fairbridge School was awarded champion and grand champion cow, and champion and reserve champion bull.

There are many other entries, and all the judges were high in their praise of the valued stock on display.

Painter Has Two Clerics Form Figure

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (C)—So that he could include all important personages at the service, the artist, Frank O. Salisbury, painted the head of the Archbishop of Canterbury on the figure of the Bishop of London in his painting of the Jubilee ceremony.

Rev. A. F. Winnipeg-Ingram, Bishop of London, made the revelation today as he visited an art gallery.

He explained he was standing in the foreground, painting the service in Salisbury's painting—and the Archbishop of Canterbury was in the pulpit.

The pulpit, however, does not dome within the range of the picture and, said the Bishop of London, the artist "had to put the old boy in somehow." So the head of the Archbishop of Canterbury was put on the figure of the Bishop of London.

Hearst Management in Seattle Considering Closing P-I. Permanently

SEATTLE, Sept. 16 (AP)—The Seattle Central Labor Council met and adjourned tonight without the question of removing The Seattle Post-Intelligencer from the "unfair" list being brought before the open session.

A plea from business interests that the council act immediately to end the strike, which caused the Hearst-owned morning newspaper's circulation a month ago, was laid before the council executive earlier in the day.

Charles B. Lindeman, associate publisher of The Post-Intelligencer, said: "There's no comment to make."

Taking cognizance of widely-circulated reports the newspaper would suspend permanently, Lindeman authorized a statement that any plans for abandonment of the plant of The Seattle Post-Intelligencer have been held in abeyance.

"A group of businessmen," Lindeman said, "asked that we defer action on the permanent closing of The Post-Intelligencer for a short time; that they hoped to be able to bring the conservative organized labor elements to the realization that it would be a terrific blow to the community if The Post-Intelligencer was forced to suspend permanently."

"We have decided to defer action for a brief period."

FLYERS LOST FOR MONTH ARE FOUND

Continued from Page 1 of the flyers, and there was no indication as to how they had existed during the thirty days of their life in the wilderness.

ORGANIZED SEARCH Search planes had combed the vast area 800 miles north of Edmonton since the Royal Canadian Air Force flyers failed to show up at Fort Reliance after flying an air-plane engine to another R.C.A.F. plane which had been forced down in the North.

The search had been fruitless until last Monday, when an empty gasoline drum, apparently tossed from their plane, was found a mile north of Lac de Gras, some seventy-five miles southeast of Point Lake, where the flyers were found today.

The gasoline drum bore a note stating the flyers' plane carried only sufficient fuel for one hour's flying and that they would fly south for thirty-five minutes.

DETAILS LACKING There was no explanation today as to how the flyers came to land on Point Lake. If such was the case, they must have flown northwest rather than south after dropping the gasoline drum.

Previous dispatches had indicated Coleman and Forry had carried only a few dry rations with them, and it was expected they would take refuge in some trapper's cabin.

All Attendance Records Broken At Willows Fair

ALL attendance records at the Willows Fair, since it was started, seventy-five years ago, were broken yesterday when 11,878 persons paid admission into the fair, compared with 11,618 paid admissions for the same day last year. All children under twelve years of age were admitted free. Since the fair opened last Saturday there have been 21,711 paid admissions, compared with 21,151 for the same period of 1935, a gain of 560 for the first half of the exhibition.

RARE DISEASE PROVES FATAL

Woman With "Stone Heart" Passes Away in San Francisco Hospital

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16 (AP)—Mrs. Regina Drury, "the woman with the stone heart," is dead. Kept alive a year and a half after a delicate operation, the forty-year-old woman died from calcification of the heart muscles here yesterday.

The malady is rare, physicians stating her case was one of only six on record in medical history.

Last year, Mrs. Drury, wife of a San Francisco attorney, was spared death when three physicians chipped away a layer of calcium that was impeding her heart action. The doctors, Harold Brunn, A. L. Brown and George Hartmann, cut a "window" in the patient's chest to reach the heart muscles, around which the stone-like layer was encrusted.

Her partial recovery was rapid and within a few days she was able to sit in a wheelchair.

The growth, however, continued, and she was brought here recently for a second operation, which had encroached too far.

WOMAN SHOT BY ACCIDENT

Seattle Man Tells of How Mrs. Knowlton Was Killed

SEATTLE, Sept. 16 (AP)—Coroner Otto H. Mittelstadt said today that, after twenty hours' questioning, Joseph De Later, fifty-seven, admitted he shot and fatally wounded Mrs. Mabel Knowlton, forty-eight, but contended it was accidental. He was held without charge.

Mrs. Knowlton died last night of a shot-gun wound. She told officers she was wounded while looking for burglars in her back yard. Earlier, officers said, she told them she was wounded accidentally while showing the weapon to friends.

The coroner said De Later today said Mrs. Knowlton ordered him out of her home Saturday evening, and was shot when the weapon was discharged accidentally. A coroner's deputy today found the shotgun at the home of an acquaintance of De Later.

FEAR LOSS OF LARGE MARKET

British Coal Interests Are Alarmed at Lifting of Bar On Soviet Coal

LONDON, Sept. 16 (AP)—British coal interests today weighed the possibilities of Canada's action in lifting the ban on imports of Russian anthracite coal.

According to one estimate, the admission of Russian coal into Canada will involve a loss of £300,000 (about $1,500,000) annually in British exports to the Dominion.

Value of British anthracite exports to Canada lately has fallen. In 1933 it was £1,983,000 ($9,913,000); in 1934 £1,845,000 ($9,225,000) and in 1935 £1,631,000 ($8,155,000).

The Daily Telegraph quoted its informant on the subject as saying: "It looks as if we shall lose the greater part of 250,000 metric tons as the United States, our chief market for anthracite or on cheaper German and Belgian coal has not been announced. The Russians may try to undercut us."

"The coal may not be imported into the Maritime and it must be sold at a fair market price. Whether that price will be based on the price of Welsh anthracite or on cheaper German and Belgian coal has not been announced. The Russians may try to undercut us."

Pretty Cat Leaves Bad Reputation

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16 (AP)—Harry Tattenham, three and one half years, and his eleven-month-old brother, Bobby, were not allowed to keep pets.

For three glorious days they hid a "pretty kitty" in their nursery, showing it into the clothes closet when their mother came to see why they preferred to stay indoors and play.

Today their mother, Mrs. Harry Tattenham, came into the nursery unexpectedly. She almost fainted when she saw the "pretty kitty." It was a skunk and a full-fledged one at that. After registering antagonism at the intrusion, the skunk fled to the closet. The humane Society was called to dispose of the creature. The Tattenhams moved out temporarily.

DROPS SUGGESTION OF MEETING DATE

LONDON, Sept. 16 (AP)—Great Britain today withdrew her suggestion that October 19 be set aside as the date for the proposed five-power Locarno conference. Germany and Italy had contended considerable diplomatic groundwork is necessary first.

This groundwork will begin at once, officials said.

PLANS TEST IN YAWNING

Competition Planned at New Jersey Fair—Victoria Woman May Enter

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP)—Hum, look what we have now—a yawning contest.

That's the latest brainstorm of Bert Nevins, Broadway promoter and press agent.

Nevins, originator of the kissing marathon, the sneezing Derby, the sleeping marathon and stern advocate of a "National Romance Week," ambled into the editorial rooms tonight with his latest gift to culture.

Nevins announced he would stage the sensational contest at the New Jersey State Fair in Trenton, September 17 to October 3.

Rain or shine, the country's most prolific yawners will be invited to vie publicly against each other for fame and fortune, or at least a nominal prize.

FOR THE MULTITUDES

Contestants will be permitted to bore themselves with any sort of reading matter, including Nevins' own scrapbook, to induce the muscular reflexes that will display their talents and bridgework to the assembled multitudes.

"Just picture it," yawned Nevins, carried away by his own enthusiasm. "It will be the greatest sporting spectacle ever held. I consider it my crowning achievement."

"It will have all the thrills of the most daring of contests, because the catch in it is for the contestants to make themselves yawn and yet not fall asleep."

"Just as soon as a contestant falls asleep, he or she will be immediately disqualified."

The winner will be the person who registers the greatest number of yawns during the allotted time.

WILLING TO ENTER

Victoria has a candidate in Bert Nevins' yawning contest, to take place at the Trenton State Fair, September 17 to October 3. Mrs. Enid Wakelin, forty-four, wife of Percy E. Wakelin, a taxi driver, is willing to enter the contest if Nevins will wire transportation and incidental expenses for the trip East.

Mrs. Wakelin will carry the money of every betting Victorian, especially physicians, who have been trying to stop her from yawning since September 8 last year. They will back her straight, place and show if a book is being made on the contest.

Mrs. Wakelin's attack on September 8, 1935, caused her to yawn forty-five times a minute for several days. For six weeks she yawned an average of fifteen to seventeen times a minute and sedatives were given her at night so she might gain rest. Gradually the yawning became less frequent until at Christmas Mrs. Wakelin was able to do some shopping.

On January 12 almost complete relief was noticed, but in April the yawns began again for two weeks at the rate of fifteen a minute. Last week a recurrence caused seventeen yawns a minute and sedatives are given every second night.

LEAST DANGEROUS FORM OF ATTACK

Hazards of Gas Reduced by Masks In Hands of Trained Population

LONDON, Sept. 16 (AP)—Gas, when used against a trained population, is the least dangerous form of air attack, declared Major S. Blackmore, Home Office expert. In addressing the Medical Practitioners' Union tonight, its greatest effect, he added, would be on the national morale.

Major Blackmore said there were three types of gas masks, namely: The service type, which would be used by the army; the civil duty type, which would be used by rescue parties and others in anti-gas work; and a mask for general use, which would last for five or six hours.

TO BE KEPT IN STORES

He said the Government had acquired a factory to manufacture the masks for general use. These will be kept in stores all over the country in readiness for use. It was not proposed to distribute them to the public in peacetime, he said, because they were delicately constructed, and if distributed now, might be found useless when the time to use them came.

Major Blackmore said it had been found that a child below the age of four or five could not wear the gas mask and efforts were being made to solve that problem.

INTERESTING DISPLAYS IN SCIENCE HALL

Biological Specimens and Scientific Instruments Shown in Exhibit

BEATING HEART OF FROG IS FEATURED

Being transported from the realm of every-day existence into a myriad of biological specimens and scientific data and machines, is experience of visitors to the Hall of Science at the Willows Exhibition. Here may be seen all manner of plant and marine life, and a brief outline of the working of photo-electric cells, tests colla and, in addition, the experience of seeing a heart actually beating in Ringer's solution.

The beating heart is one of the features of the exhibit. The organ was taken from a frog and continues to beat for a period of about twelve hours while in the solution. The solution is of the same property as real frog's blood and thus provides the necessary sustaining life.

Fairbridge Farm School Display Is Praised

ern appliance to burglar alarms, is given by the university men in charge.

The modern method of discovering radium in the earth is described with the use of a small wooden detecting device. The rays given off by the radium are picked up by an electric coil inside the wooden device and are then amplified by a loud speaker in the form of audible crackles. Whenever this crackling is observed, over ground being tested for radium, the presence of this scarce but very valuable mineral is indicated.

Insect pests and their parasites are shown in another section of the hall. Here also is a live specimen of the Black Widow spider, preserved poisonous scorpions, centipedes and various sea animals, sea cucumbers, anemones, chitons, sand worms and sea urchins.

HEART DISSECTIONS
Numerous dissections showing the changes in the structure of the heart in the different classes of animals, and the development of the brain in various classes, forms an instructive section of the exhibit.

A number of skulls showing fusions of bones in the higher classes of animals and changes in the form of the teeth, according to the mode of life of the animal are exhibited. Several embryo human skulls showing changes from the earliest stages up to a few months are also on display.

Another young man explains the solar system depicting the earth, sun, moon, Jupiter and other stars, and their relation to each other. The text coil and its relation to X-ray is very briefly shown and demonstrated.

Finally there is a short motion picture film demonstrating the growth of bacteria in the human body. It shows how the bacteria grow, divide, and then divide again to multiply their number to an alarming degree in the short space of four hours.

FINES IMPOSED FOR SOLICITING

Magistrate Henry C. Hall Rules Canada Shipping Act Had Been Violated

Hearing of the charge of soliciting trade for sight-seeing buses among passengers aboard the C.P.R. steamer operating between Seattle and Victoria without having the consent of the company to do so, was concluded in the city police court yesterday before Magistrate Hall, who, and Herbert Whiffen guilty of violating the Canada Shipping Act.

Before judgment was delivered, argument was presented by Stuart Henderson for the accused in his support of the contention that the penalty suggested by the prosecutor did not apply to other than seamen. C. L. Harrison combatted this and the history of the section in the act was reviewed for the benefit of the magistrate.

Magistrate Hall reached the conclusion there was no contradiction with respect to the sections and imposed a fine of $15.

A second offence against the act was tried with a conviction being established, and another fine of $15 was imposed. Joseph Lindal, on a similar charge, was found guilty and fined $15.

MOVIE STUDIO IS PROVING BIG ATTRACTION

Central Films Limited Talking Picture Sets Are Educational and Instructive

INSIGHT GIVEN INTO METHOD OF FILMING

The regulation talking picture studio of the Central Films Limited, is proving to be one of the principal attractions for patrons of the fair at the Willows this week. Housed in the former industrial building, the studio is literally a building within a building. A giant soundproof room has been constructed just inside the main walls, the outer section being used for equipment, paint, properties and dressing-rooms.

Seventy-five thousand feet of Ten-Test, soundproof board, went into the construction of the soundproof studio and ceiling. A special soundproofing material—imported from Los Angeles—is used as a ceiling for the shooting of sets where it absorbs all echo or foreign sounds.

The majority of the sets are from the recently-completed film, "Why Let 'Em Live," but scenes used in other Central Film productions, "The Tugboat Princess," "Secret Patrol" and "Lucky Fugitives" are also on view.

GUIDES ON HAND
Parties are conducted around the studio by employees of the company versed in their particular field of work, thus affording a complete explanation of the sets and equipment used in shooting an actual talking picture.

The first sets to greet the eye of the visitor are the bedroom occupied by Polly (Wendy Barrie) in "Why Let 'Em Live," and the one occupied by two children in the picture, one of them the Hollywood child star, Wally Albright. The Coffee Shop operated by Miss Barrie is also shown in detail.

Another set attracting much interest is the exterior and interior views of the pawn shop of J. J. McTavish. Here may be seen the large microphone boom and camera dolly which can be raised or lowered at will according to the requirements of the picture.

Another set includes the lavishly-appointed apartment of the gangsters seen in the latest talkie. The hospital room, where little Wally Albright was taken after being run over by gangsters, is also shown.

Various types of lights from the 5,000-watt lamp used for outside night shots to tiny spotlights are shown and explained. A complete set switchboard which can be transported to any part of the set is one of the more modern pieces of equipment boasted by the moviemens.

OLD-FASHIONED BAR
Then there is the old-fashioned bar, purchased from an old-time saloon, and various reflectors, both outdoor and indoor. A clever set is that of the railway coach in which the illusion of motion is produced by moving the scenery past the windows.

The minutest detail was carefully reproduced in the mess room of the lug for the picture, "The Tugboat Princess," and the chief of police's office used in the latest production. Dressing-rooms used by the stars are situated just outside the soundproof walls.

JUDGE DECLARES JURY SPINELESS

Makes Statement When Verdict of Murder Reduced to Manslaughter in Ontario Case

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Sept. 16—Mr. Justice J. C. Makins told a Supreme Court jury it was "spineless" tonight as he accepted its verdict reducing a charge of murder against William Munchuk, forty-five-year-old Ukrainian, to one of manslaughter. The jury acquitted Munchuk's forty-three-year-old wife, Annie, on the same charge that of slaying John Seabright in a dispute over a fence line between the home of Seabright and Munchuk June 8.

Mr. Justice Makins, who had Munchuk to twenty years in the penitentiary on the charge of manslaughter.

Munchuk still faces a second charge of murder arising out of the death of Amy Seabright, wife of John, allegedly from injuries suffered in the same dispute with the Munchuks. Trial of this indictment was deferred until the Spring Assizes.

INJURY TO BONDHOLDERS

There is an aspect of the reduction of interest rates which is calously overlooked in the schemes of governments to make bondholders suffer because of spendthrift zeal in administration. It is the fact that old people, who had invested, as they thought, enough to provide for their years of retirement, find themselves facing conditions which force them to take up work anew, if they can find it. The cutting of interest affects thousands of people, mostly those who have pursued a life of thrift and who have laid up what they could to provide for their old age. This factor in the situation, as applied to Alberta's venture in officially reducing the interest it will pay, is commented on as follows by The Lethbridge Herald:

"It works both ways. When the Alberta Legislature cut interest rates the other day it automatically started a lot of retired people looking for jobs. Previously they had been able to live a retired life on the earnings of their investments. Now many of them will have to take jobs to be able to eke out a living. There are less jobs already than men. As those people who have been retired go back to jobs or to their farms there will be still more men forced on to the relief lists. Taxes will go up, and what we save in interest we will probably be forced to spend on relief. Natural laws have a way of their own of asserting themselves."

LIBEL AND SLANDER

Those who have followed the situation in Seattle brought about through the enforced suspension of The Post-Intelligencer of that city, and have heard the radio broadcasts dealing with the matter, have often marveled about what is the character of the law of libel and slander in the United States. As a matter of fact that law is built on a uniform ground plan furnished by the English Common Law, but while its provisions are such, the degree of enforcement is quite another matter. Two American lawyers have written a book entitled "Hold Your Tongue," which gives an account, if somewhat on the witty side, of the law of libel and slander and defamation as it exists in the United States.

It is pointed out that it is possible in that country, fearlessly to vilify politicians and other public servants, "provided you have something on the victim, or you feel sure he has enough enemies, so that someone will turn up, if necessary, and supply some 'dirt' you did not publish." To this rule the writers of the book attach one exception in saying, "We advise the utmost caution before disparaging any member of the judiciary," seemingly because a Judge can commit you for contempt.

It seems, therefore, if the authors of "Hold Your Tongue" are to be believed, that in the United States persons in public life can be pilloried with impunity, and both radio broadcasts and newspaper articles bear this out. The book in question attacks the distinctions, which the law draws between libel and slander. Apparently while there is criminal libel there is no criminal slander. It would seem that spoken words are as likely, perhaps more likely, than written ones to produce a "breach of the peace." Libel, however, is treated as a graver wrong than slander. The contention of the writers is that when the written or printed word reached a far wider public than the spoken, such a view was not unreasonable; in an age of broadcasting it is. The claim of the authors is that the whole law of defamation should either be swept away or radically amended. As matters stand at present the advice is "go ahead and libel. What you propose to publish is plainly defamatory, but probably nothing will happen to you."

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING

George E. Sokolsky writes a weekly "feature" in The New York Herald and is also a frequent contributor to the columns of The Atlantic Monthly. He was educated at Columbia. In his youth he "ran the gamut" of revolutionary movements. He returned to Russia after the Revolution, saw the earliest steps in the attempt to try out Communism; went to China, where he participated in the struggle between Nationalism and Communism; and on his return to America found that his experience had made him a conservative at a capital rate.

In a recent essay in The Atlantic he says that experience has taught him that, in terms of "goods," poverty has been most general in non-capitalistic countries. His explanation of this fact is that the immediate objective of capitalism is to keep the standard of living continually on the rise, or more particularly, to keep the purchasing power of a constantly-increasing number of purchasers continually on the rise. It is not the expensiveness of a commodity but its cheapness that makes it of greater value to the producer. In the capitalist system, therefore, the objective of production is to bring prices down, so that more people come within the price range of a commodity; in other words, capitalism justifies itself in this, if in nothing else, that it aims consciously and successfully at a practical application of the moral maxim of the greatest good for the greatest number.

Along with a rising standard of living there is another factor which makes the system superior to others. It is human liberty. Capitalism is most perfectly developed among liberty-loving people. It is under that system that individuals find free scope for their energies. As liberty is the product of a struggle for the preservation of individual rights, Mr. Sokolsky might well have added that the professed design, the outspoken purpose, the unacknowledged intention of Socialism and Communism alike is to reduce the people to practical serfdom, and in point of fact they have been reduced, under the several varieties of national Socialism and Communism in operation in certain countries, to a condition of economic slavery. In their opposition to capitalism the Communists and Socialists are quite logical in their denial of human freedom.

Mr. Sokolsky is all for individual freedom of action, for competitive effort and a standard of living ever higher for a greater number of people. He is somewhat disturbed by the fact that the "capitalist press" continues serenely to publish "weird, unjustified, and badly-conceived attacks upon the very system that keeps them alive," but apparently consoles himself with the reflection that the capitalists are so busy producing goods and services that they appear to have no time to spend in defending their system, but prefer to let it speak for itself.

WHAT PEOPLE EAT

In the correspondence columns of an English newspaper there has been a prolonged controversy over what is the right kind of diet. The discussion has led nowhere, for it has been a case of so many men so many opinions. Apparently people practise every diversity of diet, especially those who are satisfied with their uniform state of health. In the letters printed it would appear that there is no perfect diet and that it is largely a question of personal likes and dislikes. There is the statement made that it does not matter what you eat so long as you take enough exercise; it is said that it does not matter what you eat, but when you eat, and one correspondent thinks regular eating is a humiliating slavery to the stomach. A correspondent eats a lot of fish, another none, one eschews breakfast, while yet another begins the day with a hearty plateful of bacon and eggs. Perhaps the most amusing commentary on diet is that of the correspondent who says that the secret of health is not what you eat, or when you eat, but with whom you eat.

If there is any summary to be reached from the pot pourri of opinions it is that the chief thing is to eat what and when and how you like, though this would not be subscribed to by the medical profession, which deals in calories, proteins and vitamins. To a large extent each individual prescribes for himself, as he did of old, despite the advancement in medical science and all that has been learned about food values. Meantime there is advice ad lib, and of a character always susceptible to change, emanating from learned sources as to the best diet and the way to keep slim. The medical profession recently advocated what, are known as "bath-room jerks." Now along comes the British Medical Journal with a "best method" for slimming, namely, to contract the abdominal muscles invisibly while waiting for a bus or while attending a banquet. That is simplicity itself and is within the scope of all, while eating anything and everything.

A correspondent in a London newspaper asks what benefit is expected to be derived from the introduction of stocks into England. Possibly the idea is to arrest a sagging birthrate.

Note and Comment

By ANON.

After many hints, Premier Abernethy, of Alberta, now says he is going to license the press of that Province, to bring it under control. The Alberta Social Credit movement already controls at least one newspaper, which is used as the organ for the dissemination of propaganda. Soon, no doubt, there will be an Alberta Minister of Propaganda.

Canadian newspapers as a whole are only live up to that certain standard of truth referred to by the Prime Minister, but set a shining example in fairness and impartiality for most of the world. Mr. Abernethy may convince his party followers as to pushing the press through a social credit sieve, but his thoughts are scarcely prophetic if he thinks that Canadians will like any such departure from their liberties.

Historians will find this a peculiar case to write about. Beheadings in Germany; the revival of the guillotine in France; burnings at the stake in Spain, and would-be dictators everywhere, point more to a return of the dark ages than anything else the world has witnessed for many a year.

It matters little whether executions in Spain arise from one side or the other, both seem to be carried out in the spirit of gang warfare and mob rule. At one point, resort was had to knives; to save bullets, and mere suspicion is enough to send men and women to their death. Liberty is too tender a plant to long survive such treatment.

The Dominion Government has broken out all over with a veritable rash of plans to end the depression now. Loan corporations are to be guaranteed 15 per cent of their losses, to assist home building. A guarantee of losses coming from the Government may be an open invitation to incur the losses. It is not, however, the Government, but the people who will pay.

Next, through Calgary, were announced Federal plans to put 1,000 relief recipients on its farms this winter, for work and wages. The same item showed that 500 farm hands were laid off on relief. Now, if agriculture cannot employ 500 additional men at the present level of turnover, can the Government afford to employ twice as many? Then, what good will they do on Prairie farms in winter, when the snow covers the ground, and zero winds blow outside?

There is yet a third plan, to subsidize men to be employed in industry. A bonded worker would be engaged alongside an unbonded one. What would the ultimate effect be, unless to encourage growth in bonded industry and discourage private enterprise? New deals should really try to think of something more ingenious than that.

A pole of the columns from press reports showing that Canada's export traffic up to the end of July was $3,217,671, not far short of the home production of the country, and a cool million persons more than at a similar date last year. Offset against this, however, will be Canadian travel abroad, the volume and value of which is difficult to obtain.

Victoria has enjoyed a larger and longer tourist season this year than usual, as many lines of business can testify. It would be interesting to "know" at the same time, what sums of money were spent abroad by Victorians, crossing the line for their annual vacations. In some years, the income and the outgo in this manner have almost balanced.

HOPES FADE FOR LOCARNO MEETING

Italy and Germany Delay Plans For Early Conference on World Peace

LONDON, Sept. 16.—Italy and Germany, contending "adequate" diplomatic groundwork is necessary, today dimmed British hopes for a conference of the Locarno signatories October 19.

But Germany served notice she considered the interim insufficient for such groundwork and Italy suggested that further diplomatic exchanges take place before a definite date is set.

Informed quarters here considered the chances of a general European settlement had become more remote as a result of Chancellor Hitler's denunciations of Bolshevism at Nuremberg. British circles, however, were not unduly perturbed by the verbal attacks which, it was felt, were destined principally for home consumption.

It Is Only Too True

From the editorial in The New York Mirror: "Young men who devote all their spare time and much of their working time to studying dope on horse races, or the father of a family who sinks his savings into lottery tickets, hoping to bribe fortune into dropping a 'break' into their hands—those people seldom get a 'break' and never deserve to." Thank goodness, that let us out of . . .

Apartment hotel peas. The man who shakes crumbs and dust out of a window into the 'boom' below. The man who throws his boots on the floor and knocks over a chair getting into bed. The neighbor who hangs his laundry door anywhere from 2 to 7 a.m., and belows "are you in?"

The old biddy who drops her newspaper or magazine to gaze at any person who drops into the lobby. The bright specimen who turns his radio at 8 a.m. and wanders away leaving his door wide open. The cheery bloke who sets his alarm for 6 a.m. and lets it ring down. Broad Street Bertie says he knows a man who lives in a room so small that he has to use condensed milk and shortbread. . . . ## Defence of Canada

There are some who are of the opinion that Canada does not require armed protection, and who hold that under the Monroe Doctrine that the United States would defend this country. These people rely on a broken reed for support. United States Congress never adopted the doctrine of President Monroe as a national policy. His idea, contained in a speech in 1823, was his personal opinion.—B.A.M.

Victoria United Outted?

It looks as if Victoria United soccer team is going to be left out in the "cold" this season after three years contributing in no small way to the coffers of the British Columbia Commission. Last season the locals won the Inter-City League championship and the year previous they tied for top place, if my memory is correct, and now the bosses come along and state that Victoria United cannot enter as in past seasons, as an all-star aggregation, but must do so as an individual club. The commission has informed the local secretary that it is against the Dominion soccer laws to enter as a club, and therefore today the situation is all topsy-turvy. Why didn't the commission inform Victoria United of the Canadian ruling three years ago? If the commission stands by its ruling, it means one of two things: Victoria United dropping out of inter-city competition or going into it and busting up the local first division. Where would Esquimalt, Wests, Thistles and City get without their stars in the game? What kind of a first division would it be without De Costa, Stewart, Payne, Barnes, Robbins, Gibbons, Fowler, Watt, Bell and the other boys who played with them last year? The matter has come to a head and now all that the football fraternity waits is this big question: What is going to give ground and what will be the definite outcome?—J.D.

VANCOUVER ISLAND

Sir,—The Vancouver Daily Province commenting editorially today on the tribulation of the Island in regard to its name, treats the matter in a somewhat facetious big-brotherly fashion, but the Island might very well benefit from the situation created.

Too big and important a country to retain the "Island" and an appropriate, resonant and dignified appellation should be adopted instead.

We do not speak of Ireland "Island," Great Britain "Island," Java "Island," or even of Malta or Cyprus "Island," and the countries gain in dignity thereby.

Being nowadays little more than a literary expression in relation to that part of the Old Country might well be adopted as the name for this Far Western home of the Anglo-Saxons, and Wessex, a name with honorable associations, might have very beneficial commercial value.

Captains of industry know very well that the answer to "What's in a name?" is "A very great deal." British Columbia is a good name, Wessex might prove to be one a great deal better.

Not long ago one of the great industrial leaders in England thought I came from South America upon my telling him I was from British Columbia.

DEFENCELESS CANADA

Sir,—In heartily endorsing your editorial "Defenceless Canada" in today's Colonist, I would like to add some suggestions in view of the fact that Canada has not the money to prepare schemes of necessary defence. In case of war or attack, where would the money come from? Would not "found money" be issued by the Government to meet the need in spite of any objections the banking system might make to direct issue of new Government currency? But national defence is not a matter of fighting battles with equipment, it is not a wide and inclusive subject involving many indirect contributions to a condition of preparedness and safety for human life and industrial production. It is a matter of developing, and in fact never ceases to operate progressively.

Our insurance people know from experience that an empty dwelling is in exposure to fire and destruction than one occupied by residents, and there is much of Pacific Coast territory, which is a menace because it is unoccupied.

Commercial national defence should be one of the foremost to be put in operation because it would be the most effective. It would be planned by expert direction for peace as well as for war. All long range military matters should be carried by an airway police force, on land and sea, should be developed. An airway fire protection, forestry and geographical survey department should be perfected as a branch of commercial national defence under Government control.

This would entail the training of large units of experienced men in air services, who could devote six weeks of their year to special training for war service in home defence schemes for Canadian territory.

There is slowly developing on our Pacific Coast here Japanese fishing communities, many of whom are said to be military or naval officers. As a measure of national defence the Government might subsidize while Canadian fishermen and settle them in towns along the coast, giving them six weeks' training per year as a volunteer force to be called upon for coast protection in times of danger or war or direct attack. In the off seasons such men could be used in road building, ground men for aerial services, etc., and their very presence there on this coast territory would in itself be a measure of national defence while adding to the revenue of the Government in developing new territory.

It was stated that during the last war the fishermen in their small sailing craft were a most valuable asset to Great Britain in locating coast guard vessels and other useful services along the coast. The Government must be aware that a large number of unemployed men on border or seacoast territories cannot be said to be a condition making for national security, but these men, or others in place of them, could be turned into valuable defence units in a definite scheme of commercial defence development.

National defence need not be measured only by standing armies, naval vessels, or the number of bombing airplanes. At the back of all these must stand a prepared and steady people whose loyalty is beyond question, being backed by happy homes, contented families, and life-long interests. If they have confidence their Government is efficient,

Large Commercial Exhibits Attract Attention at Fair

Manufacturers' Building Houses Splendid Displays—Latest Creations for the Home Prominently Featured—Lower Floor Occupied

THE larger commercial displays in the Manufacturers' Building at the seventy-fifth Provincial Exhibition at the Willows are drawing large crowds daily, it was reported yesterday by Alderman Andrew McGavin, director-in-charge. Here, nearly twenty large exhibits occupy the entire ground floor of the structure. Upstairs may be found displays of photography and art.

Occupying three panels along one side of the building, the exhibit of David Spencer, Ltd., this year features the latest in household furniture. Three rooms, completely furnished, are shown with the modern styles of living room, dining room and bedroom furniture. In addition to the suites the artistic drapes are stressed, showing the trend to artistic damask. New methods of hanging curtains are demonstrated and an attendant in charge is on hand to give advice as to problems of home furnishing.

RADIO EXHIBIT
Kendall's Radio Laboratories have an interesting radio exhibit. Here may be found the integral parts of the radio and attendants are present to explain how each part reacts with the set to produce fine tone or distorted tone, as the case may be. A tube testing machine is on hand here.

A completely equipped modern beauty parlor is to be seen at the booth occupied by the Belle Beauty Shoppe. An operator will explain the best mode of hair dressing for the various types of hair and outline the newest creations in permanent waving.

ELECTRICAL DISPLAY
General Electric appliances, featuring the new 1937 "Magic Tone" radios, are displayed by the Jamieson Electric Company in a well-arranged exhibit. Of particular interest is the new Model 15, a beautiful five-band, all-wave console that covers all standard broadcasts, foreign and domestic short-wave, police, weather and amateur broadcasts, plus an ultra short-wave band. In addition to the radios, there are General Electric washers, electric ranges and refrigerators on display.

Automatic stokers and draft controls, Kolpak and furnaces are on display in the booth of the Heat Shop. The last word in mechanical heating equipment is being demonstrated in this booth.

Red Cross Workshop displays the products produced by the disabled veterans at the Johnson Street store. The intricate work done on some of the products was given high praise by patrons.

WEIGHING DISPLAY
Another exceptionally fine booth is that of the Hudson's Bay Company. Here the 1937 models of Dictator, De Forest Crosley, Stewart-Warner and Victor radios are shown, proving, through actual demonstration, the tremendous advance made in radio engineering for the coming season. The Masterpiece and the Locomotive electric washer is also featured here, while refrigerators are represented by the new A.M.C. and the Stewart-Warner.

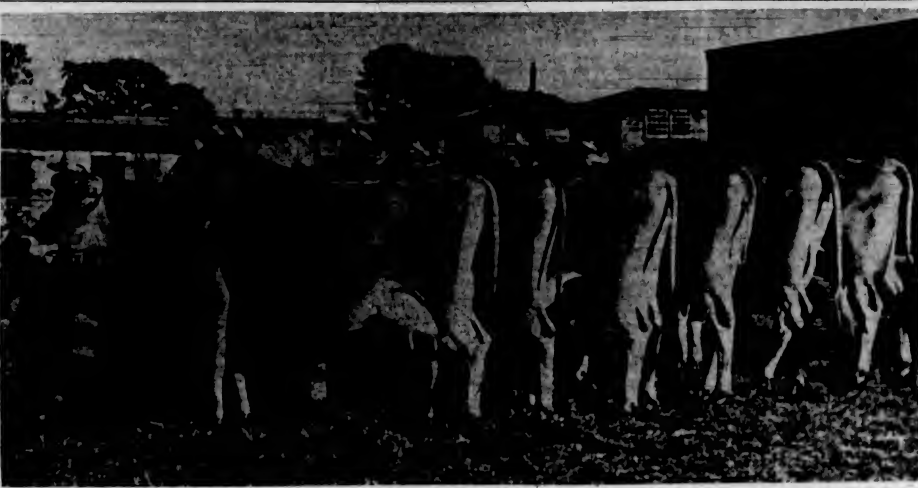

A modern piano, by Mason & Hinch, is prominently shown. A novel part of this exhibit is the weighing machine, which operates by the suction through a vacuum cleaner. The Vancouver Island Hardwood Company has an attractive showing, which features John-Manville home insulation, illustrated by clever models of house construction the tremendous heat conservation and heat resistance this type of insulation gives. Another part of the booth shows different types of hardwood flooring, Imperial G. & B.

Oil Burners are on view and are being demonstrated in an adjoining booth. Other equipment attached to oil burning furnaces is also being shown. Gamers, Ltd., has a fine showing of their well-known hams and bacon.

Another big exhibit is that of the Spratt's Dog Food organization. In this display all types of animal food are to be seen and hints on animal feeding are given out in folders. Mrs. Burgess has the only home-made candy stall in the show and samples are being given away.

GAS REFRIGERATION
Gas refrigeration, one of the most modern of all household appliances, is featured as part of the B.C. Electric Railway Company's exhibit. Gas heaters and "radiant-heat" are

Uniformity of Jerseys Clearly Demonstrated

The marked uniformity of these Island-bred Jersey cows at the Willows Fair is clearly shown in the above photograph. The prize winning cows are those of Victoria and district and draw high praise from the Jersey judge. The cows, owned by Herbert E. Burbridge and A. W. Aylard, of Royal Oak and Sidney, respectively, are now on display in the cattle barns at the Willows.

demonstrated. The 1937 "Bee-Cee" washer is shown in actual operation as in the Simplex-Irene. The demonstration of the Royal "Culinaire" electric mixer shows the housewife how she may lighten the burdensome tasks of the kitchen by use of an electric machine which will slice meat, beat cakes or puddings, mash vegetables, grate cheese, etc. New 1937 model radios complete the artistically-arranged booth. A strikingly modernistic design is found in Eddy's display, showing off to the best advantage the latest styles of ladies' ready-to-wear, which are featured. Dresses, coats and frocks all carry the individuality of fashions, which are as new as tomorrow and are shown against a background that cannot fail to arrest the eye.

A large central booth shows to best advantage the dairy products of the Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association, while nearby the Old English Beverage Company has an exhibit which features their soda-water products.

LEADER OF BRITISH FORCES IN PALESTINE TAKES STERN ACTION

JERUSALEM, Sept. 16 (CP-Havas).—Lieut.-General J. G. Dill, commander of the British forces in Palestine, last night banned Thursday's schedule conference of Arab regional leaders. It was one of his first official acts since reaching Palestine Sunday to assume command of the military forces here.

At the same time two Arabs convicted of terrorism were sentenced to death. These were the only capital sentences since Arab-Jewish enmity flared into open violence several months ago.

THE RESULT OF AN OVERCALL

The theory that bidding and play are two distinct departments of bridge easily may be proved erroneous. That they are inextricably interwoven becomes obvious the moment one considers which factor it is that usually dominates the planning of the play, because there is no doubt that this factor will be found to be the bidding that went before.

Take the case of overcalling, for instance. Myriads of players feel that if their "stepping out" goes unpunished by a double, they have, at least, lost nothing by their effort. This conclusion is fallacious. They may have placed by their bid one single card, and this placing may turn out to be fatal. That was the case in today's hand.

South could not use asking bids on this hand to any advantage, because on the second round of bidding he could see that his partner could not have a positive answer to any asking bid, since he himself held all four of the aces. But he correctly assumed that, with North giving a free raise, there must be a good play for a slam.

West opened the fourth highest spade. Declarer won, and surveyed his prospects. He saw the opportunity to discard "red" diamonds on dummy's long diamonds, which would leave him with a losing club and a possible losing heart. When he considered West's spade overcall, however, and noted that there was only one king missing from the combined North-South hands, it appeared to him an odds-on-chance that this king was in West's hand, and therefore not finessable. That being the case, he looked around for a plan that would obviate the finesse.

He cashed the other spade and then ran off three diamonds, dis-

URGES ISLAND ASK AUTONOMY

H. D. Twigg Reviews Relations Between Island and B.C. at Saanichon

An enthusiastic meeting of the Canadian Legion at the Orange Hall, Saanichon, last night heard H. D. Twigg, secretary of the Vancouver Island Provincial Association, discuss the advisability of seeking autonomous government within Confederation for the Island. Steps were taken at the conclusion of the address to form a committee of the association.

Mr. Twigg outlined the story of Vancouver Island from Colonial times, pointing out that nature had endowed the area with vast capital wealth that had been exploited for the benefit of the Mainland. In the process of eliminating the capital assets of the Island, he said, immense sums had been paid into the provincial treasury in the way of revenues, but that no appreciable part of this revenue had been used for the creation of new channels of employment and prosperity.

PARTY CONTROL
He stressed that under provincial authority there was no place for party politics, that partisanship demanded large campaign funds, and that such in British Columbia were largely contributed from Vancouver. This meant that Vancouver partisans had it in their power to control government. He emphasized

Weary Tramp—Dat all depends, lady; is it lamb, pork or wood?

ROAD COMMISSION

He particularly urged the value of abolishing partisan control of public works and freeing the civil service from its baneful influence. He advocated a "road commission, absolutely free from partisanship."

As long as the Island was dominated by the partisan groups of the Mainland, who would not voluntarily relinquish their grip, no improvement could be anticipated for Vancouver Island. But as a separate entity—as outlined by Sir James Douglas, who warned against any rash tampering with the financial and territorial set-up of the Island when it was under separate government—the Island would prosper.

At the conclusion of his address the speaker answered many questions from the audience.
Major W. Garrard occupied the chair.

MAKING SURVEY OF B.C. MINING

F. C. Pickwell, Associate Editor of Toronto Saturday Night, Visits City

F. C. Pickwell, Western representative and associate editor of Toronto Saturday Night, arrived from the Mainland yesterday and left later in the day for Seattle.

My visit, the first in three years, is connected with our effort to provide Eastern readers with an accurate and comprehensive review of British Columbia mining development, stated Mr. Pickwell. While in Victoria Mr. Pickwell obtained first-hand information of major mining developments in the province and was shown Victoria beauty spots in a drive around the city by A. V. Clarke, of Clarke Advertising Service.

During the day, Mr. Pickwell called upon George I. Warren, of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, and Major J. Gordon Smith, of the Provincial Information Bureau, to compliment them upon their tourist publicity efforts during the past season.

"Victoria people may not realize it, but Victoria and Vancouver Island are being given a place of prominence in the news columns today which is the envy of other cities that also have claims as holiday resorts," said Mr. Pickwell. "I can only attribute this to the intensive campaigns carried on year after year by these bureaus in Victoria, and to the natural charm of the city about which they write."

Seek Permit for Atlantic Flight

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP).—The Bureau of Air Commerce said today Vincent Burnelli, of Kew-Forest, N.J., airplane designer, had applied for authorization for a trans-Atlantic flight by a new all-metal monoplane.

The application stated the plane would be flown by Clyde Phipps, veteran pilot, and Marion E. Greenberg. Burnelli did not say whether he himself would make the flight, which is scheduled to take place before October 15 if the Air Commerce Bureau grants permission. The flight would be from New York to England.

POTTER APPEAL IS CONTINUING

Hearing Is Expected to Occupy All of Today in Court of Appeal

The appeal in Rex vs. J. M. Potter and P. J. H. Van Oudeal, against the three-year sentences imposed by Judge P. S. Lampman on charges of theft of $400, was argued all day yesterday in the Court of Appeal by Robert O. Harvey, who will continue his argument when court resumes this morning. The submission of Mr. Harvey was directed to the case of Potter. It is expected that the two appeals, which are being separated by Mr. Harvey, will occupy all day today.

Mr. Harvey contended that the appellants had been active in getting a mill started at Sooke. He claimed that the money involved in the "trouble" some $400, was trust money paid to C. H. Tait to hold in trust for the syndicate in which the appellants were interested until such time as the syndicate opened a bank account.

Council was met by Chief Justice Macdonald desiring that Mr. Harvey should show that the appellants were entitled to the money, or that they took the money, which amounted to the taking money belonging to Charles Desford, yet the trial judge, Judge Lampman, found that the money was the property of O. H. Handley. The Crown, said Mr. Harvey, had failed to prove this.

WAS COMMON VENTURE

Mr. Harvey stated that Desford, Potter and Van Oudeal were in a common venture to get the mill going. Then Handley was brought in and Desford and Handley had an undertaking to hold control of the stock of the company on this $400 transaction.

When the judges said that he believed the accused more guilty morally than legally, it was shown that he had a doubt and that the accused were not given the benefit of this doubt as they should have been, said Mr. Harvey.

Many Friends Present At Wedding Last Night

Miss Evelyn Florence and Mr. William John Holman Married at First United Church— Reception Held in K. of P. Hall

Two popular civil servants were united in matrimony in First United Church last night at 8.30 o'clock, in the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives, the bride and groom being Evelyn Victoria, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Florence, 2415 Quadra Street, and Mr. William John Holman, second son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Holman, 1156 North Park Street.

Rev. E. P. Church conducted the service, and Mr. Edward Parsons presided at the organ, and, as the register was being signed, accompanied Mr. Nelson Hicks, who sang "Because."

The church had been decorated for the occasion by friends of the bride, with masses of Autumn-tinted flowers and sword ferns. Tall white baskets of blooms were round the pulpit, and pink flowers tied with bows of white tulle marked the guest pews. During the service the bride and groom stood beneath a white arch decked with asters and zinnias.

LOVELY BRIDE

The tall, dark bride, who entered the church with her father, who gave her away, walked up the aisle with her two attendants to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," and looked lovely in her princess gown of ivory tulle, a cowl neck-line and long light sleeves. Her beautiful veil of tulle net had a deep edging of lace, and was embroidered at each corner with seed pearls and lovers' knots of silk, and was worn with a halo of tulle and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, gardenias and white heather.

The maid of honor, Miss "Boo" Wilson, and the bridesmaid, Miss Lucy Muriel Huxley, were gowned alike in charming tulle frocks with skirts flaring below the hips to floor-length, edged with accordion-pleated frills, and worn with shoulder capes, edged with accordion pleating and fastened back and front with ribbon bows. Narrow sashes with butterfly bows at the back encircled the waists. Miss Wilson wore apple green, trimmed with rose pink, and Miss Huxley rose pink, with the reverse accessories. They also wore picture hats of mohair in contrast to their gowns, trimmed with ribbon, and silver sandals, and carried shower

Worn for Sports or Town

Lightweight Wool Suit in New Grape-Harvest Color With Two-Skin Silver Fox Scarf.

THE jacket costume is a great favorite for Autumn. The college set, the debutante and matron alike are choosing it. Types differ as widely as the various sorts of women selecting suits for their Autumn wardrobes. There are the very neat and youthful types, for instance, a plaided wool hip-length jacket, belted, worn over a solid color wool skirt. This type of suit often may be obtained with a matching topcoat—a very practical and smart costume for any woman, and especially so for the college girl or the traveler. Then there is the suit with woolen dress or jacket and skirt, over which a fur coat is worn. These come in the same category as the above. Another group shows a dress and jacket of wool, the jacket partly made of a flat top.

Optimistic Prospects For Music

The Victoria Music Teachers' Association resumed meetings yesterday with a record attendance at the Y.W.C.A., when several matters of business were discussed.

Members were generally optimistic and enthusiastic about the prospects for music and its restoration to its rightful place in the education of the young. This it was felt, was partly due to the outstanding success and stimulus gained at the first inter-provincial convention of music teachers held in Vancouver in July, at which over 100 teachers registered, several coming from as far East as Winnipeg. Another contributing cause to this feeling of confidence was the introduction of music as an optional subject in the high schools of the province. The president, Reginald Cox, hoped to have reports of the inter-provincial annual meeting and the British Columbia annual session for the October meeting.

The treasurer reported all bills paid, and a healthy balance. The meeting also discussed the holding of joint recitals this season, deciding to have two, one before Christmas, and one after. The details were left in the hands of the programme committee. One new member, Mrs. Bosward, was welcomed, and M. Edwards was greeted as a visitor.

Council were installed as follows by Mr. Napier: Lawrence Matthews, Nanaimo, president; Hermonie Spurling, Ladysmith, recording secretary, and Florence Lemon, Duncan, treasurer. Jack Dobson, Duncan, and Mrs. G. Cunningham, Ganges, were absent. Returning officers of the Mid-Island Council, Miss Thornycroft, Lawrence Matthews and Franklin Foster were thanked for their work.

MAKES PRESENTATION
A fellowship hour was held at St. John's Hall. During the evening a presentation was made to Mr. A. E. Robinson, who is being transferred to Vancouver. He was given a brief case and Mrs. Robinson an English leather purse, in recognition of their services to St. John's Church and the A.Y.P.A. ## MADRID FOOD IS NOW RUNNING LOW

Bilibao swift Fascist speedboats effectively cut off all communication between Government-held territory and France, except by warship.

PLANES SHOT DOWN

MADRID, Sept. 16 (AP).—Anti-aircraft batteries, the Government announced tonight, shot down several insurgent bombing planes over Madrid and San Gila, forty-five miles from Madrid.

Government pursuit planes which took the air against the attackers gave "good accounts of themselves," the Government said, but did not prevent a day-long bombardment of the sector, considered indispensable by the Fascists as a link between Talavera and Avila.

The Government centred a heavy military force in the "Belvedere" sector seeking to clean out Fascists from areas southwest of Madrid.

The ground forces of the two opposing armies were evenly matched, numerically. The main obstacle to Government advances in the sector was the superior air forces of the insurgents.

The situation in Zaragoza and Oviedo, the Government said, was "critical for the insurgents, who cannot possibly hold out much longer."

PRESIDENTIAL RACE STARTS IN EARNEST

Continued from Page 1. Democratic senatorial campaign committee, concerned himself first with the majority credited to Senator Wallace White over Governor J. Brann in the Maine senatorial election. A recount will be demanded, he said, on the ground of violation of the election laws. Brann placed himself at the disposal of Chairman James A. Farley for Roosevelt speech making.

The activity indicated the five primaries on Tuesday, on top of the Maine elections the previous day, were considered a turning point to the Roosevelt forces. The President stood on his hind that his campaign trips might be comparatively few and brief. Governor Landon prepared in Topeka to meet with young Republicans later in the week and to campaign Mid-Western states later.

LAST NOMINATIONS. The last primaries will not be over until the past convention nominates for governor in New York a fortnight hence, and the Rhode Island convention, select senatorial and House nominees early next month.

TO SEEK APPROVAL OF SEAWAY TREATY

Continued from Page 1. upper house. One of the stipulations in the agreement reached by the late Canadian Government was that Ottawa would not be required to ratify it until it had been done by the United States.

The project, developed out of the report of the joint board of engineers in 1924, had many proponents and some antagonists in Canada. For the most part opposition to the St. Lawrence waterway came from Quebec, where it was feared such a development might endanger the prosperity of Montreal and the ocean ports of the St. Lawrence.

HOLIDAY FEATURES DRAW LARGE CROWDS

Continued from Page 1. Jacks of Vancouver Island will compete in loggers' sports. Five events for woodmen have been arranged, while a special event will be staged for ladies. The sports, under the direction of J. W. Auchinachie, Duncan, will be held at the south side of the Central Films, Ltd., studio. In the evening the second horse show will be held, with the first event scheduled for 8.15 o'clock.

DAHLIA SHOW

The eighth annual show of the Victoria-Dahila Society will open this afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Main Building. There are five sections to the show and a fair entry list was reported. The Dahlia Show will continue on Friday and Saturday, D. D. McTavish, director of the Main Building, announced last night. Everything is in readiness and a large attendance is anticipated.

All the attractions of the midway were back, with additional features provided for the gay holiday crowd. Bright lights, tin-pan music and the games of chance were as popular as ever.

Situated within a few steps of the main gates, the midway was convenient for the crowds as they came through the main gates.

FREE AERIAL ACT. The most popular of the midway attractions yesterday was the trapeze act presented by Grace DeCarro and her troupe of aerialists. This was a free act staged by the B.C. Agricultural Association each day on the midway, but yesterday six shows were given. The highlight of the act, which drew many "ohs and ahs" from the crowd, was the performance of Grace and Helen DeCarro as they whirled in midair suspended by their teeth. The "Komedie Katons" were given an ovation as they completed their difficult comedy routine on the trapeze.

The Browning Amusement Co. had its up-to-the-minute side-shows and riding device in operation, the most popular of the latter being "the whip" and the "lilt-a-wheel." The public, too, enjoyed the gyrations of the ferris wheel, the seaplane and the glider, while the youngsters were taken care of on the merry-go-round and baby seaplane.

SIDESHOWS POPULAR. The sideshows had their leather-hunged barker on the outside urging everyone to see "the greatest show on earth." In the amusement concession line were the Nevada Law wild west show, the "fun in the hayloft," and an athletic show

Directors of the Manufacturers and Industrial Buildings reported that one of the largest crowds they had ever seen had witnessed the commercial exhibits. The Main Building attracted big crowds to see the district displays and produce exhibits, while in the Women's Building the displays were enjoyed by both men and women.

At the Central Films, Ltd. Studio, three guides, who conducted personal tours of the plant were kept busy all day. Victorians showed deep interest in the motion picture industry.

The stock barns with their thousands of dollars of livestock were also scenes of great interest in the afternoon and early evening.

All in all, the 1936 Citizens' Day was judged to be an outstanding success in every regard.

LEAVES TO ACCEPT NEW SCHOLARSHIP

To take up his studies under the scholarship recently awarded him by the Institute of Paper Chemistry to continue graduate work there, leading to the doctor's degree, D. J. MacLaurin, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. MacLaurin, 1832 Belmont Avenue, left Victoria this week for Appleton, Wis.

Mr. MacLaurin received his bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from the University of British Columbia in 1932, and was later associated with the B.C. Pulp & Paper Company, Ltd., becoming chief chemist of the Woodlark mill in October, 1934. During last winter he was on leave of absence pursuing graduate studies at the University of Washington, under Dr. H. K. Benson.

FLYERS TO SEARCH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP).—A specially equipped airplane was ordered to take off at Fairbanks, Alaska, today for the first of a series of flights aimed at discovering cold waves long before they sweep across the United States.

Weather Bureau officials here said the daring flights—planned at a place where 60 degrees below zero temperatures have been recorded—may make both aviation and weather history.

THINKING OF LONG FLIGHT

Next Year Amelia Earhart
May Attempt to Hop
Around the World

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16 (AP).—Amelia Earhart, who simply refuses to stay down to earth, is "nearly sold" on the idea of going around the world by airplane.

"I'd like to fly around the world," she said, "but I'm a busy person this year. There are other things to do. Next year? Well, one never knows."

The woman who flew over both the Atlantic and Pacific said she had cast herself as a "human guinea pig" for future studies of the stresses and strains affecting avia-tion's human element. A world flight might be the logical development.

In November she will bring back here her "flying laboratory"—a new $75,000 Lockheed monoplane—which she is taking to Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., on Saturday. Tests will follow, sponsored by the Purdue Research Foundation.

The experiments are slated to include long-distance flights, since engineers say her Purdue-financed plane can go 4,300 miles non-stop.

Young Stowaways Get
Aboard Dutch Mail Ship
In Holland

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Sept. 16 (AP).—Loneliness for their mother in far-away British Guiana caused four-year-old Mally Clark and her brother, two years, to stow away aboard the Dutch mail steamship Cotta, ship's officers said when the vessel docked here from Holland. The children had been left with their grandmother in Holland a year ago. Shortly after the Cotta left port, the two were found aboard without tickets. Passengers who recognized them told the captain their identity and said Mrs. Clark was in British Guiana.

THE RETURN OF JOAN

by JOSEPH McCORD

CHAPTER XXX

There was a deep silence in the room after Deeds McCune asked Beckham—whenever Gene Gaston, look his own life.

"There are several things to take into consideration," was the Narcotics Bureau agent's studied reply. "You're thinking it may not have been a suicide. It's easy enough to figure out a motive for Sloan's putting the poor chap where he couldn't talk. You've had a chance to find out what that man can do with his hands. . . . It would be fairly easy in the water. And now we know for sure from Gaston's letter to you that he wouldn't have made much resistance. . . . unless he changed his mind at the last."

"He was in a hurry," Deeds exclaimed in a low voice. "I tell you he was murdered, Beckham. That devil did it!"

"Easy. We don't know that. Where are your witnesses? I should have been one, I suppose. . . . but I wasn't. Only those two doctors. They'd laugh at the charge. More than that, we have written proof now that Gaston intended to kill himself. What would be more likely than he would drown himself? Plenty of motive. He was on the spot, as his letter to you says."

"But nobody. . . ."

"Oh, yes, they might. I'm sorry, but we can't disregard evidence," Beckham coolly thrust Gene's letter to Deeds into an inside pocket. "I give you my word it won't be used unless it's necessary. Maybe it's compounding a felony. . . . but you're forgetting there's another side to the picture."

"What do you mean?"

"That boy's mother, for one thing. I told you out on the beach this morning that there are compensations. . . . sometimes. Don't you get it? And there's Miss Lindsay, a mighty fine girl, too. Wouldn't it be much better if Gaston's death were accidental? For them? I'm not sure what is going to come out of this. But Sloan isn't going to do much today. If that boy were alive, of course he'd try to make him the goat. Now he can't. He won't care for much grilling on that one subject. Besides, we've got enough stuff on him. And he knows it."

"I see. You think it would be kinder not to rake up the past. Yes, . . . you're right."

"I think it would be kinder. . . . if we can. I'm making no promise."

"But it burns me up. . . . to think of their getting away with it. I know. Same as I know you'll change your mind when you stop to think of it. Mrs. Gaston. I'm not trying to be tough."

"Oh," Deeds settled back on his pillow. "I forgot," he added dully. "I thought you had."

"But, Beckham. . . . I know for a fact that marriage wasn't legal. Just a couple of kids on a lark, you know. I happen to know they never lived together. You see they both falsified their ages."

"And you want that brutalized? I suppose you know there's only one way to annul a marriage. There's a record. It would have to go into court. So would Miss Kendall. . . . she's a widow. And I suspect that fact is known to only a very few. . . . some persons who will be close enough to keep their mouths shut. For the girl's sake."

Deeds nodded and looked away. "I think you've had enough for one day," Beckham rose to his feet, but paused at the side of the bed. "Rest a bit and think it all over. I'd keep quiet and let things work out as they will. I'll be here for a short time and I'll do anything I can to help. After all, we're in your debt, Shake."

"Deeds?" Deeds squeezed the little man's hand in a tight grip. "What about me? If it hadn't been for you. . . ."

"Then, maybe, we're square. See you later, old man." He paused in the doorway for one last sober reflection. "You know, McCune, there are times when I wouldn't mind being of the cloth. It would come in handy as a. . . sort of extra-curricular activity."

Not long afterwards Deeds had another caller, another member of the Beckham family, no less than young Middleton, who bestowed a toothy smile upon the man on the bed, after assuring himself there was no one else in the room.

"Hello," he remarked. "Hello yourself. Come in, won't you?"

"Can't stop," the boy explained importantly. "I got a note for you. . . . nobody's supposed to see me give it to you either."

"I see. Quite a day for. . . . things, isn't it?"

"You bet. I know my dad was after those fellows. . . . he lets me in on things. . . . sometimes. He caught 'em pretty slick, didn't he? He's always pullin' stuff like that. They call him an ace."

"So do I. A note, you said. I believe."

Miss Lindsay asked me to slip it to you after she went away. She and her mother just left. . . . taxi and my pie."

"I'm sorry I didn't see them," Deeds said regretfully. He held out his hand. "Thanks a lot. You won't be insulted if I give you a quarter for your kindness, will you?"

"Me? I should say not! They're showing 'G Men' again up at the Criterion."

"Fine."

As who as the door was closed, Deeds examined the envelope Middleton had given him. The handwriting was very different from Gaston's. . . . bold and angular. The enclosed note was brief.

"My dear Deeds—"

"This seems to be your day for letters from our family. . . . I try to bother you, but I thought I'd rather say good-bye this way than in person. It's mostly to thank you for being kind to poor old Gene."

"I'm not going to pretend that I know what it is all about. But I can't help putting a good many things together. . . . and it starts a picture that I'm too cowardly to want to see. I'm going to hope I'll see you again some day and that you are going to be happy. I think you will be. . . . you're a good girl."

"I have explained to mother that you are a bit indisposed. She extends her good wishes and so—more than you suspect—does 'Claire'."

Deeds slipped the note under his pillow with a little sigh. And that said "Claire" he'd have liked to see Claire again, say good-bye. She had proved a good friend. . . . but Beckham was right.

"All that remained now was. . . . Joan. That must be faced as quickly as possible. There was no reason to fear, yet Deeds was fearful without being able to explain it. She would have been almost sure to see the Ellsides' departure. Or to have heard about it. With the Lindsays gone, the cottage would be buzzing like a hive."

He wondered what Jere thought of it. . . . seeing his one-time pal marched away wearing bracelets. Probably he was thanking his lucky stars that Joan had not followed him. Advice and encouraged the fat doc.

The events of the whole day seemed like some mad, preposterous dream. But that dull pain in his Adam's apple was proof enough that something had happened. He'd be lucky if his whole neck wasn't black and blue. If he only had been able to land on that guy Sloan's nose just once. . . .

Deeds jerked into a sitting position at the sight of Joan in the doorway. He swung his feet to the floor, unable to speak for an instant.

"No, no!"

Joan paused long enough to close the door, then hurried to the bed. She placed her hands on Deeds' shoulders and forced him back on his pillows.

"Oh, Mac. . . . you mustn't try to get up. Please. Are you badly hurt?"

"Of course not. I'm all right. . . . only I've wanted to see you. I was just coming to find you. I couldn't stand it much longer."

"His brown eyes were devouring her face."

"I've been so afraid. . . . I had to come to you, Mac." Her fingers touched him gently. "Your poor neck. . . . it's all marked. Mac, he might have killed you."

Deeds swallowed painfully. He captured Joan's hand and held it prisoner in both his own.

"How did you know about that? What do you know. . . . about anything?" he managed.

"Almost all, Mac," she answered tremulously. "You see, I've been talking to Mr. Beckham."

"And Mac. . . . he told me. I must understand that you had done everything you could to help Gene. And. . . . and when it was too late to help him. . . . you almost lost your life trying to. . . . to . . ."

"It wasn't that bad, Joan. I don't care now. . . . whatever happened wouldn't have made any difference. . . . just so long as you knew. As long as you believed I'd tried."

"But I want you to understand, too, Mac. I can't bear it. You know I wanted to help Gene, because I was so sorry for him. I didn't love him. We never could have been. . . . like that. Oh, Mac, dear! What's the use? I can't. . . . I can't pretend any longer."

Joan's wet cheek suddenly was pressed close against Deeds'. One of his arms went around her shoulders. His hand stole up and lost itself in the softness of her brown hair.

There was a long silence in the room. Deeds was the one to break it. His voice was none too steady.

"Darling. . . ."

"Yes, Mac." Joan lifted her head and looked at him through her tear-filled eyes. Her cheeks were very pink now. She managed to smile.

"I want my first kiss. . . . Joan. He got it. Got two."

"I'm spoiling you," Joan drew back with a low laugh and nestled herself on the side of the bed. Her hands went to her head. "I hate to think what my hair looks like."

"Wonderful," Deeds sighed.

"I must go before. . . . you know. And I don't care somehow. But I've got to start taking care of my man. What can you eat that won't hurt that poor throat? I'll fix anything you want. I'd love to."

"What are you talking about? Deeds sat bolt upright. "If they're serving sala around this place, to right in the place. . . . please you can fix it to let me have my old one. You know. . . . opposite you?"

"I wouldn't risk that, my dear. What if Jack Salina to bake you some custard."

"Pie? Fine!"

"Mac, you funny kid. . . . you and your pie."

"Come here." He reached up and drew her head down, placed his lips close to her ear. "I never could say 'darling' and my voice is cracked worse than usual. But did you ever hear this?"

"Oh, you gotta be a lover."

"Of the standard daughter."

"If we waiter get."

"The second piece of pie?"

"The End."

Jack was calling on an old friend he had not seen for some months. Mrs. Briggs, the wife, came to the door.

"Good morning. Is Joe in?" asked Jack.

"Down and out," snapped Mrs. Briggs, not on the best of tempers. "Very sorry to hear that," said Jack.

"What's the trouble?"

"No trouble at all," protested the lady. "Joe's come down, and he's gone out."

BIG SHIP IN FROM ORIENT

Jefferson Docks With Large Passenger List After Smooth Passage

Shriners returning from a tour of Oriental countries, on which they visited Japan, Korea, Manchuria, China and the Philippines; a party of thirty-six young Chinese men and women students who will attend various universities in the United States; and a large representation of U.S. Navy wives, numbering thirty-eight, and including twenty White Russian women who married United States army officers at Shanghai, made up a considerable part of a colorful capacity list of travelers brought in by the American Mail Line S.S. President Jefferson, which arrived here yesterday morning at 7 o'clock from Far East ports.

Travelers aboard the big liner and officers of the ship, commanded by Captain Alvin O. Lustie, U.S.N.R., stated the North Pacific was "like a millpond" all the way across. The Jefferson left Rutherford, N.J., at 10 o'clock after leaving passengers, mails and considerable cargo here.

Among the passengers arriving on the Jefferson were Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Holman, Mr. and Mrs. O.

B. Joseph, Mrs. R. W. Myres, Mrs. Olive Nelson, Cuyler Hayles and Berman Shoenfeld, all of Seattle, who were members of the Shrine tour; P. S. Crane, a law student of Cambridge University making a tour of the world, who debarked here; Miss M. Butler, Manila, who is going to William and Mary College, Virginia; S. K. Cotterman, Manila, for the same institution of learning; and D. E. McCauland, navigation student, of Seattle.

Ackerman, round-trip passenger, Seattle; R. Alunan, Manila, proceeding to Notre Dame University; Miss Mary Bell, nurse, en route to England from Kobe; A. M. Boyat, Manila, going to Notre Dame University; Mr. and Mrs. Berkenkotter and son, the former a student of mining engineering from Manila; Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Bunch, the former being a teacher from Hongkong, who intends to study for a year in the United States; and Mrs. Irene Clapham, from Hongkong, returning to her home in Ontario on a visit.

Other arriving on the Jefferson included E. P. Edmondson, Manila, who will study at Phillips Exeter Academy, New Hampshire; Mr. and Mrs. F. G. O. Pickart, world tourers from The Hague; Mr. and Mrs.

R. F. Hamilton and son, the former a salesman with the W. P. Fuller Company; Mrs. Allan Hight, Manila for Missouri; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. ## STAYED UP ALL NIGHT

Citizens of Sunderland Disagree With Pacific Views Of Town's Mayor

SUNDERLAND, England, Sept. 16.—Citizens of this important town of shipbuilding, ironworks and coal-mining have shown unmistakable disagreement with the views of their pacifist mayor, Alderman Summerbell, who felt himself unable to receive the officers of the cruiser Cairo paying a four-day official visit to the town.

The Town Council had also declined not to organize entertainment for the officers and crew of the Cairo.

PAY THEIR RESPECTS

Commander Mack, senior staff officer, who represented Commodore Pridham-Wipple, arrived at the Town Hall with two other officers to pay their respects. At the mayor's request, they were received by his deputy, Councillor Ditchburn, former mayor. Councillor Ditchburn today will return the official visit.

Hundreds of the townspeople stayed up all night awaiting the arrival and holding impromptu dances at street corners. Their singing and cheering were heard three miles away. Thousands assembled outside the Town Hall when the officers arrived.

IMPORTANT BODY

Meanwhile the River Wear commission, who in practical matters are almost as important a body as the Town Council, received other officers, entertaining them to lunch most hospitably with tea for the men.

Today the men will see the soccer match between Sunderland and Glasgow Celtic.

A constant stream of townspeople is visiting the ship.

Two Endeavours Clash at Dartmouth

It must have been with mixed feelings that T. O. Sopwith raced against Endeavour I in the Dartmouth Royal Regatta. He built the Endeavour I to race for the America's Cup, which he lost. He sold Endeavour I to Mr. Fairley, and now he has built Endeavour II (on the left) and has challenged again for the coveted trophy. The picture shows Endeavour II holding slight lead over Endeavour I in the early stages of the race.

SHIP ENDS LONG TRIP

Gad, Seventy-Six Days Out Of Sunderland, Arrives At Halifax

By E. L. WILLIAMS Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX, Sept. 16.—Seventy-six days out of Sunderland, England, Captain Khristian Khristianen named his 240-ton Norwegian three-masted schooner Gad into Halifax harbor today—and wondered what all the fuss was about.

The fifty-six-year-old captain shrugged off his trip, one of the slowest Atlantic crossings recorded in the last century. "It was nothing," he said. "My only worry was that we were losing money."

Alternate head winds and calm marked the voyage, he explained. There were few storms, none of any violence. Provisions aboard were sufficient to last another month, Captain Khristianen insisted, but admitted potatoes had turned black.

BLEW SHIP BACK

"We were becalmed fifty of the seventy-six days," he said. "When winds did blow, they were from the west and only blew us back. Fourteen days ago, I think it was, we spoke to the Danish vessel Betty and asked her to report us. It was the longest passage I ever had across the Atlantic."

The Gad and her crew of seven or eight Norwegians left Sunderland July 2. The voyage was expected to take about thirty days. I. H. Mathers & Son, Limited, Her agents here, had given the schooner up as lost when the Betty docked at Port Williams, N.S., yesterday, and reported hailing the Gad off Cape Race. The Gad will load 125,000 feet of lumber for England.

SAW PLENTY IN FAR EAST

Shriners Impressed With Experiences Encountered On Tour of Orient

A number of Shriners who visited the Orient as members of Nile Temple tour of Asiatic countries returned here on the American Mail Line S.S. President Jefferson yesterday morning. Included in the party were Tom W. Holman, President of Nile Temple, Seattle, and O. B. Joseph, also from the Puget Sound city, who told ship reporters of what impressed them most while they were away from America.

Mr. Holman, who is a prominent attorney of Seattle, thought a recent international trial at Shanghai was one of the particular high lights of his journey, while he had had an opportunity to see at first hand something of the manner in which things were shaping in the Philippine Islands. He was much impressed by the ability of Manuel Quezon, provisional president, in dealing with present problems, public as well as private.

Mr. Joseph considered the most interesting bits encountered were in Korea, where a typhoon intended with their through train, necessitating a detour in an antiquated train, with little carriages about the size of old-time street cars in which the Seattle travelers were crowded in with "Chinese" Japanese and Koreans for eight hours.

TOKIO REVELATION

Tokio was a revelation to the party with its magnificent buildings, wide streets and public parks. Great areas of electricity, the lighting of the streets was particularly brilliant. The Japanese capital, they stated, had more neon signs than California, Oregon and Washington combined. The industrial centres also gave the Shriners something to think about, with their great areas of smokestacks and myriads of workers in evidence.

While traveling in Korea, Manchuria and North China, the Shriners were continually reminded of the fact that they were in a foreign country. Continually under surveillance the only privacy they enjoyed was in their hotel rooms.

Asked if they could explain why the Japanese Government should be spending so much money in attracting tourists to Japanese administered countries and then make them feel that they were suspected of sinister designs, the travelers believed that while strangers are made welcome in Yokohama, Tokyo, Nagoya and certain other places, it was the policy of the authorities to direct, if possible, tourists away from other sections.

Chester Chastek, Seattle, who organized the tour, came over from Seattle to meet the liner and welcome the returning members of the party.

WORRIED BY PIMPLES AND ECZEMA

Complexion Unblemished After Six Weeks of Kruschen

"For the past two years" writes a woman, "my face was covered with pimples and red blotches, and I also had eczema on my neck and forehead. I tried lotions, creams and ointments, with the slightest effect. I was so worried. Personally I decided to give Kruschen a trial, and without any exaggeration, within six weeks my face was without blemish, and I have not had a sign of eczema since. My face was without every morning and would not be without it."—Mrs. J. A.

Pimples and eczema are frequently due to impurities in the blood—trifling poisons which disfigure body and are liable to spread from the system. Kruschen Bala help to keep the body clean, thus preventing the accumulation of impurities in the blood. (Adv.)

Form Players Have Good Day as Public Choice Mounts Win

Thoroughbreds Gallop to Form for Large Citizens' Day Crowd at Willows Track—J. L. Seabey Stables Gain Three Victories—Jockey Lasswell Fined

Before a large and happy "citizens' day" crowd, the largest of the present race meeting, the bangtails galloped to form yesterday at the Willows, enclaved as "public choice" mounts.

The five-year-old gelding, owned by Mrs. E. Percival, led the parade to the judges stand in the second event at six furlongs and thirty yards and returned $10.85. The "lumber topers" provided the only other double-figure win price of the day when Argue, from the Doly stables, galloped to a thrilling triumph and rewarded his backers with $12.55.

There were many features and thrills for the large army of punters, but the day's greatest thrill came in the seventh gallop at one mile and one-eighth when the three leading thoroughbreds came to the wire in a blanket finish. It was a great climax to a great race, and really had the fans in a frenzy. May Room, with Jockey Vessell in the saddle, was called on by the head to spare over Great Run, while the latter just managed to push his nose home in front of Jillion.

Another good finish was witnessed in the third race, when Adam Somers, owned by J. L. Seabey, scored a head decision over Ben Wiggin. The steeplechase, the final event on the card, was crowded with excitement at the finish as Argue, Boy O' Mine and Bondani came over the last jump practically together and then raced to the finishing line neck and neck. Argue finally came through in the centre and scored a great victory.

TRIPLE TRIUMPH
While punters by the hundreds were happy because of their ability to select the bangtails, the biggest man on the track was J. L. Seabey, veteran race horse owner, who scored a triple triumph. The popular orange and black silks of this owner flashed past the judges stand three times in first place. He first crashed the winning slot in the third event, when Adam Somers came down in front, and then followed up with victories in the sixth and seventh races, when Peach Stone and May Room copied the lion's share of the purses.

The daily double, Eketert to Adam Somers, netted the fortunate bettors with $28.30, while the one-two bet in the fifth and seventh gallops paid off at $15.85 and $48.20. The attendance was good and betting was brisk.

Jockey Billy Lasswell drew a $50 fine from the presiding judges for his actions in the sixth race, when he had a leg up on Flag Bearer. The rider cut sharply over on Romney Baw, while the thoroughbreds were racing around the top turn, according to officials.

Bill Sperry and Art Vessell led the riders by piloting a pair of winners to the wire. Miller, Simpson and Barnett brought the other mounts home in front.

Another good card of races will be presented today, with the Highlands Handicap at six furlongs and thirty yards as the feature event. Running in this race will be such well-known sprinters as Marcus Dole, Bell Rap, Miss Sage, Lady Gold, Wreath, Mr. Spicer and Gold Struck II. First post time is 1:45 o'clock.

Autographers Hound Perry

Fred Perry seems to be having quite a time accommodating all the insistent seekers after his autograph. The British tennis ace, displaying deadly precision on the courts as he stroked his way to the United States singles tennis championship, appears his general self as he responds to the demands. The scene is Forest Hills, L.I.

last week against young Manley Meade, former Yale football player, and lost on a foul in the fourth round. A past master in the art of handling out the rough treatment, Papaino gave the youngster anything but an enjoyable evening. Saturday evening the veteran Italian will meet his equal in Jack Forsgren, easily one of the mat game's most rugged performers. The Mainlander thrives on rough tactics and should make things exceptionally interesting for Mr. Papaino.

At the request of Chief Thunderbird, the local matchmaker is trying to land George "Cannonball" Kitzmiller, Portland, for a return bout with the Indian. In his last battle with the Portlander, the "Chief" had the misfortune to break his arm and consequently lost the fixture. He is more than anxious to have a chance to wipe out this defeat. Kitzmiller is the playful type of pachyderm who loves to tear out a row of chairs to throw at an opponent. He has shown here many times and always has the fans in an uproar.

Louie Newman, Victoria matman, says that the local event, even if Papaino in the eight-minute round feature bout, will be a fast, exciting match.

NEW YORK DRAWS CLOSER TO NATIONAL PENNANT

Breaks Even With Pittsburgh Squad To Retain Margin

Giants Continue to Hold Lead of Four and a Half Games Over Cardinals, With Only Eleven Games to Play—Cubs Take Twin Bill From Bees—Triple Play Made by St. Louis

NATIONAL LEAGUE
NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (AP)—The Giants drew a step nearer the National League flag today, although getting only an even break in a double-header, marking their season finale against the Pittsburgh Pirates. Three hits and a walk in the fourth inning accounted for all the Giants' runs as they pulled out a 2-1 decision in the opener. Old Waite Hoyt had two much stuff for them in the nightcap and the Pirates won another pitching duel, 4-3.

Since the second-place Cardinals also split their two starts in Philadelphia today, the even break left the Giants four and one-half games in front with only eleven to play.

Cards Break Even
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16 (AP)—The Cardinals executed a triple play while losing the opener to the Phillies, 7-3, but came back with a belated hitting parade in the nightcap to halve the twin bill, 5-2.

The triple killing came in the second inning and nipped a Phil up-raise. Camilli walked and went to second on Aronovich's single. Grace, in attempting to sacrifice, lined to Haines, who doubled Aronovich at first base. Mue rified the ball to Durocher at second, catching Camilli off the sack for the third out.

Frequent clashes between players and umpires marked the games, and Frankie Frisch, Durocher and Medwick were banished.

The Phillies came back from the triple play in the opener by scoring five runs in the third inning.

Yanks Celebrate as They Won Pennant

With two victories over Cleveland Indians, the New York Yankees clinched the American League pennant, conceded to them weeks ago. This group, led by Manager Joe McCarthy, leads the dug-out cheering to celebrate the event. Yanks had won ninety-two games, while losing forty-six, and could not be ousted from the flag-position even if they dropped every remaining game.

American Defeats Ada Mackenzie in Canadian Tourney

Mrs. Rudel, of New York, Dethrones Champion as Play Continues in Title Meet at Montreal—Vancouver Woman Eliminated—Marian McDougall Reaches Quarter-Final

By SYDNEY GRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.
DIXIE, Que., Sept. 16 (AP)—The defending champion, Ada Mackenzie, of Toronto, went out of the Canadian Women's Open golf championship today as the first tournament fireworks spluttered over Royal Montreal, leaving a line-up of four Canadian and four United States shots for the quarter-finals.

The fuse exploding the Toronto golfer from her sixth quest of the open title was touched off by Mrs. Thomas D. Rudel, of New York. The co-laborer, red-headed Margery Kirkham, of Montreal, and pretty Marjorie Milroy, of Lexington, K.Y., paraded through the second round.

Mrs. Mackenzie's game fell to pieces after she shot an outgoing nine par-38. She was spotted with three birdies for a three tip advantage at the turn. Before she recovered, the young New York matron fired birdies and pars herself to even the match on the thirteenth. Two more birdies on the sixteenth and seventeenth holes defeated the titleholder, 2 and 1.

Miss Milroy shared the work of eliminating Western Canada's last hope, defeating Barbara Northwood of Winnipeg, 4 and 3, while Mrs. A. B. Darling, of Montreal, trounced Vancouver's Mrs. W. N. Silcock, 7 and 6.

MEDALIST ADVANCES
Miss Kirkham, the medalist, went around the trap-laden course in a fine exhibition of all-round shooting to eliminate Mrs. A. J. Wright, of Montreal, 5 and 4, and qualify to meet Marian McDougall, of Portland, Ore., who swept past Mary Peck, of Montreal, with a 5 and 3 triumph.

This—the meeting of the stylish Miss Kirkham and the twin winner of the Pacific Northwest championship—was the scheduled highlight of tomorrow's quarter-finals.

A possible United States semi-final in the top bracket was foreseen after young Margery Kirkham, of New York, survived an early show of erratic shooting to defeat Audrey Macintosh, of Montreal, 5 and 4.

To complete the quarter-final bracket, Mrs. E. H. Goodwin continued her fine play with a 3 and 4 victory over Mrs. C. H. Shuttleworth, of Hamilton, and Mrs. H. W. Soper, of Montreal, who defeated another Montrealer, Margaret Lockhart, 7 and 6. The draw placed the Toronto woman against Miss Milroy and Mrs. Soper against Mrs. Darling.

Victoria Athletic Club Parley to Be Held This Evening

AN important meeting of the Victoria Athletic Club will be held this evening at 8:30 o'clock. All members are asked to attend. President Jack McKenzie announced yesterday that the outdoor shows at the Royal Athletic Park, which were so popular during the Summer season, have been discontinued. The genial head of the V.A.C. and the directors express their thanks to the many patrons for the support and co-operation during a most successful season.

BIG FEMALE CAT SHOT NEAR SOOKE

A. W. Bradley, while hunting grouse and buck deer in the Sooke River district recently, with B. Johnson, bagged a six-foot, female cougar as a distance of fifteen feet with his shotgun. The bounty on the cat was $20, set by the game department.

It was getting on toward dusk before the hunters came across a buck, and Johnson, who had a rifle, let go a shot, which staggered the deer. The yelping and excited dogs were let loose to track the wounded animal down. As the hunters followed the dogs they heard a noise. Looking up they were in front of a cougar, who had emerged from the underbrush.

Bradley unhesitatingly brought his shotgun up and, with a true aim, fired a load of buckshot in the animal's neck, killing it instantly. A search the next morning for the ruins proved unsuccessful for the hunters. They did, however, manage to locate the dead buck.

Jack Lovelock to Quit After Next Race in the U.S.

LONDON, Sept. 16 (AP)—Jack Lovelock, New Zealand's Olympic 1,500-metre champion, left on the Queen Mary today for the United States and what may be the last big race of his career. Lovelock is slated to oppose Glenn Cunningham, Archie San Roman and Donald Lash in a special mile run at Princeton, October 3.

"For all practical purposes, this race will be my last," Lovelock said. "I'll not run next season."

Dodgers Catcher Only Seven Points From Paul Waner—Applying Leans

By the Associated Press

Babe Phelps, of the Dodgers, closed up more of the gap separating him from the National League batting lead yesterday by getting two hits in three times at bat to boost his average four points to .371. The leader, Paul Waner, of the Pirates, also picked up ground, but not as much as Phelps. The bucceller hit safely three times in six chances to boost his mark one point to .378. In the American League, Gerald Walker, of the Tigers, slipped out of the leading trio, going hitless in three times up, to fall to .358. While Bill Dickey, of the Yankees, although idle, took over sole possession of third place with .360.

The standings (three leading hitters in each league) follow:

HOME RUN STANDING
Yesterday's Homers—Terry, Giants; Tronky, Indians; P. Waner, Pirates; Herman, Reds; one each—The Leaders—Gehrig, Yankees, 48; Tronky, Indians, 41; Fox, Red Sox, 38; Ott, Giants, 32; Di Maggio, Yankees, 29; Averill, Indians, 26.

League Total—American, 726; National, 577; total, 1,303.

Following the tournament, the prizes will be presented by the president at the clubhouse and then in the evening the boys will stage their annual banquet at 7:30, followed by a concert programme under the direction of Tom Ober.

Draw Made
Fourteen members of the Victoria Greenkeepers Association will forget all about trimming lawns, cutting the fairways and other daily assignments, today, and travel to the Macaulay Point Golf Club, to tee off in their annual championship tournament. The boys will be stroking their way after two titles, the championship proper, which carries with it the Charles F. Todd medal and the handicap crown, the winner of which takes possession of the Sayward Cup.

Husky Dick White, who hits them with the same tenacity and determination that he looks after the Gorge Vale course, will be defence line both the championship and handicap honors when the boys start off from the first tee. Dick has been polishing up his game in his spare moments and feels confident of retaining a least one of his titles. The handicap event is over eighteen holes and will be played in the morning, while the championship proper will be over thirty-six holes minus handicaps.

Following the tournament, the prizes will be presented by the president at the clubhouse and then in the evening the boys will stage their annual banquet at 7:30, followed by a concert programme under the direction of Tom Ober.

QUALICUM CANADIAN CLUB HOLDS MEETING TO OPEN NEW SEASON

QUALICUM BEACH, Sept. 16.—The first meeting of the Qualicum and District Canadian Club this season was held on Tuesday evening at the Sunset Inn, when Professor E. S. Farr, of Victoria, spoke on "Canada Today and Tomorrow". In spite of the short notice a large audience was present from this and surrounding districts. Professor Farr who was introduced by Rev. J. A. Pettie, president of the branch, traced the influence of Canada upon the development of the imperial idea, showing that many of the steps which have marked the building of the present Empire had their origin in this country.

Without Canada, he said, we should not have the Empire as we now know it. As in the past, so in the future, he stated, Canada must try to make a distinctive contribution to the Empire's thought, stirring spiritual values. Professor Farr left on Wednesday for Alberni and Cumberland, where he will address other clubs.

Jane Dixon Says:

ONLY ABOUT ONE-TENTH OF ONE PER CENT OF THE WOMEN MEET, LOVE AND ARE LOVED BY THEIR IDEAL MAN AND WALK WITH HIM TO THE ALTAR.

Should a woman wait for marriage until she finds her ideal man? She may, if she doesn't mind waiting indefinitely and facing failure at the end.

The percentage of women who meet, love and are loved by their ideal man and walk with him to the altar is about one-tenth of one per cent.

Well do I remember the ideal of my girlhood—A tall, lean, dark romantic fellow with the manners of a courtier and the histrionic talents of a Barrymore.

The only qualities to which I adhered in my choice of a husbandly ideal were the first two—tall and lean. Otherwise my G.O.P. (good old provider) is a bronzed army officer with blue eyes and brown hair. He is courteous, but not courtly, and his acting is done on the field of action.

Any worthy man is an ideal man regardless of his physical being or his social standing.

Love blots out the imaginary ideal and paints the real one in its place.

EDUCATED WOMEN AND MARRIAGE

Dear Miss Dixon: I've just been reading an article about what chances women of different ages have to marry, especially if they have college educations.

The author seemed to think that women with higher education held too lofty ideals for their possible future husbands.

I wonder if this is so.

Also the author went on to say that if a girl was around twenty-five—which I am—and wished to marry, the thing for her to do was to take the best available raw material and mould it into a good husband.

There's a reason for my interest in this subject, of course.

I'm in love with a young man who falls far below my ideal.

He hasn't a very good education. He is more than two years my junior. He has some rather bad habits that are far from becoming.

Yet he loves me, and I love him.

Do you suppose I will regret marrying him and wish that I had married someone who came nearer meeting the ideal I have always held for a husband?—Ruth.

THEY SHOULD MAKE AN AGREEMENT

Answer: Would the young man take offence if you mentioned to him diplomatically the habits that are not to his credit? He shouldn't. Perhaps he has not had the opportunity to distinguish between good habits and bad ones. If so, he should be happy that someone cares enough to help him smooth out the rough places in his behavior.

If you feel he will not respond to helpful treatment, you should not marry while you are in doubt as to your future judgment of him.

Make your decision before marriage.

Suppose he is not malleable material. Suppose he adheres stubbornly to his present faults.

Do you love him enough to accept them without regret?

Why not suggest an agreement between you—that he will tell you frankly those things he does not admire in you and that you will do the same with him? If you can both be honest in your criticism and amiable about its acceptance, you should find both your ideals in marriage.

As for the author who decries college education for wives, he or she must be a throw-back to the age of women-dolls and dulleads.

Academics are a potential mother, and no mother can have too lofty ideals for the future generations.

ACTING MAYOR RESIGNS POST

Ald. Percy R. Brown States Reason in Letter to City Council

Alderman Percy R. Brown tendered his resignation as acting mayor of Victoria in a letter addressed to the Mayor and City Council yesterday morning. He was appointed to the position on a permanent basis early this year in order to have a substitute on hand whenever the Mayor was out of the city or indisposed.

In the letter, Alderman Brown stated his reason for resigning: "In fairness to the council and in the general interests of the city and the administration of council business, I feel that an acting mayor should be available at all times; and in view of the pending action of disqualification, I wish to tender my resignation as acting mayor."

At a meeting of the City Council Tuesday evening, aldermen decided not to appoint an acting mayor until after September 24, when the Union of British Columbia Municipalities Convention closes at Vernon.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

PRURITIS-ITCHING

While pruritis or itching is in or on the skin, it is not usually because of any real skin condition that the itching occurs.

These are, of course, the cases where the skin is bitten by mosquitoes or by pediculi (lice), but generally speaking, the itch of the skin is due to the presence of some substance which is carried to the skin surface.

The itching in hives (urticaria) is due to some substance in the food to which the individual is sensitive. This substance acts as a sort of poison which, when carried to the little nerve endings of the skin, causes the itching.

Similarly in jaundice. Something obstructs the flow of bile into the small intestine; the blood carries some substance that is in the bile to the little nerve centres in the skin and itching results.

Certain general diseases of the body, diabetes and gout for example, are accompanied by itching.

Itching is sometimes caused by a disturbance of the central nervous system; those who are very nervous or hysterical are often afflicted by itching.

An infection from a lazy bowel, from infected teeth, tonsils, or sinuses often causes itching.

You can thus see that in looking for the cause of itching—aside from scabies, lice or mosquitoes—it means a general overhauling of the body by the physician, including an examination of the urine and blood.

The presence of bile or too much sugar in the blood may be the cause of the itching.

The first thought is the digestive organs and the regulation of the diet.

Dr. Bernard Fantus, Chicago, in his "Handbook of Therapy," tells us that there are two types of persons in whom pruritis (itching) is seen. One is the stout, robust, plethoric (full-blooded) person who is continually overeating, and the other is the thin, hungry person who is continually starving himself. In the stout individual the diet should be cut down, particularly meat, eggs and fish (protein), which seem to be the worst offenders, and also starch foods (sugar, potatoes, bread) should be cut down to some extent. Fatty foods should be eaten freely by thin persons. Fruits will be found beneficial to both types.

If the patient is constipated, small doses of calomel, or teaspoonful doses of Epsom salts every morning before breakfast will be of help.

The local applications to relieve itching are many: a teaspoonful of carbolic acid to a quart of water, or a teaspoonful of baking soda to a pint of water are often efficient.

In extreme cases the X-ray, radium or high frequency current may be necessary.

Many Jews Hurt In Polish Riots

WARSAW, Sept. 16 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Reports reaching here yesterday said more than fifty Jews were wounded in violent anti-Semitic disorders yesterday in the town of Wyszki Mazowiecki, between Warsaw and Bialystok.

The Jewish population was said to be in a state of panic, with all Jewish shops closed.

What Today Means

"VIRGO"

If September 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:25 to 11:25 a.m.; from 1:25 to 3:25 p.m., and from 8:25 to 10:25 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:25 to 9:25 a.m. from 11:25 a.m. to 1:25 p.m., and from 6:25 to 8:25 p.m.

It might be well to keep in mind "Charity begins at home." Be fair to yourself before impulsively serving others, and you will keep out of difficulties. You may be called upon this day to distinguish between what constitutes a just and legitimate request and what is purely a selfish form of solicitation. Business interests are apt to conflict on this day, so it will be good judgment to be slow in making decisions that might be far-reaching in their final results. Loose tongues, making tactless remarks, are likely to spoil
